Russ Veto Withdrawal Resolution

U.S.-Backed Move For U. N. Action Killed By Soviet

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Tuesday (AP)—The Soviet Union killed by veto Tuesday a resolution by the United States and three other countries calling for an immediate withdrawal of invading Indian forces from Portuguese Goa and two other Portuguese territories.

The vote was 7 in favor and 4 against but the Soviet Union's negative vote constituted a veto—its 98th in council history.

Just before that the council failed to approve a resolution submitted by Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic rejecting Portugal's charges of aggression against India.

Only the Soviet Union joined the sponsors of that resolution, which would have called on Portugal to end resistance to India and cooperate with her in liquidation of Portuguese possessions on the Indian subcontinent.

U.S. Chief Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson introduced the four-power resolution with a declaration that the United States "is against colonialism and against war."

He described as "shocking" the news that India has resorted to force, and said it mocked professions of nonviolence made by Prime Minister Nehru and his defense minister, V. K. Krishna Menon.

He declared the future of the United Nations was at stake. "This body cannot apply the principle of the double standard in regard to resort to force," he said.

He spoke after Indian Ambassador C. S. Jha defended the invasion as an act of anticolonialism.

"The Portuguese are standing against the rising tide of freedom and nationalism in Asia and Africa," he said. "If they find themselves in trouble, they themselves are to blame."

He declared 450 years of Portuguese occupation of the territories "is of no consequence to us," and added: "The concept of sovereign rights won by conquest in Asia and Africa by the European powers must die. We are in the 20th century."

Vasco Vieira Garin, the Portuguese delegate, accused Nehru and Menon of exploiting the situtation in order to help them out of difficulties they faced because of the approaching Indian elections.

At the outset of the meeting India found an immediate supporter in the Soviet Union, which objected to a debate on the grounds India's military action was strictly a domestic matter, and thus outside the council's jurisdiction.

The council promptly overrode the Soviet objections by a vote of 7 to 2 with 2 abstentions. Ceylon joined the Soviet Union in opposing a debate. Liberia and the United Arab Republic abstained.

U.S. "Regrets" Use Of Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States told India Monday it deeply regretted the use of force against Portuguese colonies in India.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk voiced this country's view at a meeting with the Indian ambassador, B. K. Nehru.

Nehru, a cousin of Prime Minister Nehru who recently visited this country, called at the State Department at his own request to outline the Indian position.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said the envoy left with Rusk an informal note setting forth India's version of the attack on Portuguese Goa, Diu and Damao.

"The secretary expressed the U.S. view that the United States deeply regrets the use of force in this situation," White told newsmen.

Hearings For 735 Negroes Delayed By City Officials

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—The trial of more than 700 Negroes was postponed indefinitely Monday for a cooling-off period after a week of racial strife.

The delay of the court hearings was the first break in the impasse between Negroes and city officials of this south Georgia city.

City officials refused to yield on other demands for the release of prisoners without bond, desegregation of bus and train facilities and establishment of a permanent biracial committee.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in jail since Saturday, immediately posted bond and was released as efforts began to bond out all of the 400 Negroes who remain in jail.

Bond For Nine Reduced

One other concession was made by the city. This was reduction of bond from $750 to $200 for two Albany Negroes arrested in a railway station integration attempt Dec. 10, and a reduction to $400 for seven others arrested in the same incident.

Police Chief Laurie Pritchett said he was told by M. S. Page, executive secretary of the Albany Movement, that there would be no further mass demonstrations. A total of 735 Negroes have been arrested in a series of marches and other demonstrations directed at the Albany City Hall.

Biracial Talks Held

"The Negroes came to a clearer understanding of city policy," said City Manager Stephen A. Roos. Biracial talks preceded the decision to call a cooling-off period.

King said after his release he believed there were better chances for racial understanding in Albany than in many other cities where he has joined in integration efforts. "The mayor made the statement that the door is open," said King. "I think communications will continue."

King praised Pritchett for his handling of "a most explosive situation in an efficient way."

Goldfine Pays $110,000 Fine To Government

BOSTON (UPI) — Industrialist Bernard Goldfine paid a $110,000 fine Monday to the federal government.

The payment, in the form of checks for $60,000 and $50,000 was made by attorney Burton L. Williams to John A. Canavan, clerk of U.S. District Court here.

The fine and a year in jail were part of a sentence imposed against Goldfine last July 5 for evasion of $792,000 in personal and corporate taxes. He also was given a suspended 18-months sentence and placed on probation for five years.

U. S. District Court Judge George C. Sweeney had ordered Goldfine to pay all fines and all taxes due to the government, including penalties and interest, as part of the probation.

Monday's payment was regarded as an effort to bolster Goldfine's next bid for parole. The United States Parole Board rejected a parole petition last October.

Goldfine becomes eligible for parole in January. At present he is confined to a U.S. public health hospital at Staten Island, N.Y. for treatment of a slight stroke suffered earlier this month at the federal prison in Danbury, Conn.

Goldfine is scheduled to appear in federal court here Jan. 2 with his secretary, Mildred Paperman, on a charge of violation of the terms of their probation.

Tshombe, U.S. Envoy Confer In Rhodesia

Peace Hopes Rise; Undeclared Truce Appears In Effect

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Fighting in Elisabethville was reported ended Monday night after U.N. forces pierced to the heart of the war-worn Katanga capital.

With the city almost completely surrounded by U.N. troops, every Katanga soldier in Elisabethville seemed to have withdrawn to the countryside and an undeclared cease-fire appeared in effect.

As machine guns and the mortars that have battered Elisabethville since the fighting broke out Dec. 5 were silent, President Kennedy's special Congo envoy and Katanga President Moise Tshombe arrived in neighboring Northern Rhodesia for a rendezvous aimed at achieving a possible formal cease-fire.

In London, Lord Dundee, British Minister of State for foreign affairs, announced in the House of Lords that both U.N. and Katanga forces were observing a cease-fire in Elisabethville.

Tshombe To Meet U. S. Envoy

U.S. Ambassador Edmund A. Gullion flew to Ndola, Northern Rhodesia. Tshombe crossed the border in a motorcade, accompanied by top aides.

Tshombe had been urged by Gullion to meet him in Ndola and then procede with him Tuesday to Kitona, a U.N. base on the Atlantic coast, for a face to face talk with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula on Congo unity.

Crossing the border south of his capital, Tshombe said that before he decided whether or not to go "I want to speak to Mr. Gullion."

But a U.S. official with Gullion said it would be "a fair assumption" that Tshombe would agree to leave for Kitona Tuesday aboard a U.S. plane to confer with Adoula.

Formal Cease-Fire Seen

The American spokesman and other sources agreed that a formal cease-fire would go into effect as soon as the two Congo leaders meet.

Associated Press dispatches of the faded fighting in Elisabethville reached Ndola by automobile.

They said the city appeared emptied of Katanga soldiers as Irish and Swedish troops moved into the center of town.

Even as U.N. forces consolidated their hold, Katangans were reported planning to continue guerrilla resistance in the bush. A white officer in the Katanga army said, "We don't mind. We are replanning our campaign on the basis of the U.N. occupying Elisabethville. Believe me, the war has just begun."

Heusinger Note Returned to 'K'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has sent back as "unacceptable" a Soviet note demanding that West German Gen. Adolf Heusinger, a top NATO official, be handed over for a Nazi "war crimes" trial

Announcing the rare diplomatic step Monday, the State Department said the Russian note was returned to the Kremlin by U.S. Embassy officials in Moscow Friday.

The United States last returned a Soviet note when it sent back a blunt-worded message from Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev to then-President Dwight D. Eisenhower several years ago.

State Department spokesman Lincoln White said the Heusinger note, delivered last week, was returned for "reasons already spelled out."

GIs Use Autobahn; No Red Interference

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States sent a combat infantry convoy across the Soviet Zone to West Germany Monday in defiance of a Communist East German protest against such troop movements. The Communists made no attempt to stop it.

The convoy involved 127 troops of Company C, 3rd Battle Group of the U.S. 6th Infantry. The troops, traveling west in three groups of 16 vehicles, cleared the Communists' checkpoints on both ends of the 110-mile autobahn. Neither Soviet nor East German authorities harassed them.

Food—"It's A Bargain"

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman talks to Mrs. Maurice Bresnahan, of Falls Church, Va., in a chain food store at Arlington, Va., where he campaigned personally yesterday to convince housewives that food is a good bargain. He said an hour's wage will buy much more food now than it would 10 years ago. Denying it was a stunt, he said he was trying to focus attention on efforts to work out a suitable farm program to give the farmer a more equitable income. With Mrs. Bresnahan is her 5-year-old daughter, Theresa Ann. (AP Photofax)

Stay Of 'Rider' Trials Refused By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused unanimously Monday to halt prosecutions of "Freedom Riders" in Jackson, Miss., mainly because those who asked a stay apparently were not among those arrested.

Samuel Bailey, Joseph Broadwater, and Burnett L. Jacob had asked for an injuction on behalf of people of their "class," until the questions involved could be tested in the state's courts.

They said a stay would ease what they called the enormous impact and expense inflicted by a "vexatious multiple prosecution program now being carried out" in Mississippi.

The court's brief unsigned order commented that "a federal injunction to stay state criminal proceedings is an extraordinary remedy." Then it went on to say:

"In addition to the considerations normally attending an application for such relief, a serious question of standing is presented on this motion, in that it appears that the movants themselves are not being prosecuted in the Mississippi courts."

Justices Hugo L. Black and Felix Frankfurter, concurred solely on grounds that the three men are not being prosecuted in Mississippi.

The available papers did not identify Bailey, Broadwater, and Jacob or say what their role is with the Freedom Riders.

Apparently the way was left open for individuals facing prosecution in Jackson to ask the Supreme Court for a stay of proceedings and to appeal from a ruling by a three-judge federal court in Mississippi.

The three-judge court on Nov. 17 refused to grant a stay of prosecutions and declined to enjoin state and city officials from enforcing racial segregation under various Mississippi laws. The three-judge court said such issues had to be decided first in state courts.

Democrat Favored In La. House Contest

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Democrat Joe Waggonner remained the favorite over Republican Charlton H. Lyons Sr. as northwest Louisiana's 4th District prepared to elect a successor Tuesday to the late Rep. Overton Brooks.

Some 95,221 persons—97 per cent Democrats—were eligible to vote in an election that saw one of the strongest Republican campaigns in Louisiana in years. A 50 per cent turnout was forecast, with cloudy skies and mild temperature.

Polling places in the seven-parish district were scheduled to be open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Already, 899 persons — above average for an off-year election have cast ballots in absentee voting thta ended last week.

Minuteman Fired 3,600 Miles From Concrete "Silo"

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Air Force Monday fired a Minuteman "instant ICBM" 3,600 miles from a concrete-lined hole in the ground.

The gleaming white rocket vaulted from the 90-foot concrete-lined "silo" at at 11:04 a.m. EST. A little more than 20 minutes later its instrument-loaded nose slammed into a target area in the Atlantic Ocean southeast of the cape.

This was the second straight successful shot of the solid-fueled intercontinental missile from an underground hole, and put the Minuteman program within about one month of its planned schedule.

Plasma Flown To Fire Victims

NITEROI, Brazil (AP)—Urgently needed medical supplies were ferried by helicopter to Niteroi Monday for use in treating the hundreds injured Sunday in the worst circus fire in history.

So far 180 bodies have actually been counted, but an official death toll has yet to be issued. Unofficial sources estimated between 250 and 260 persons were killed in the fire that swept through a nylon circus tent during a crowded afternoon performance.

Police said about 200 of the estimated 500 injured were in critical condition, and many were not expected to live.

In nearby Rio de Janeiro, the U.S. Embassy said it had turned over all medical supplies stocked in North American missions. The United States also is flying in 500 bottles of plasma. Other medical supplies were being flown from Sao Paulo to Rio and then brought across Guanabara Bay to Niteroi by helicopter.

Kennedy, Cold Improved, Stays In Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy, suffering from a heavy head cold, suddenly changed plans for his return to the White House Monday and stayed in Palm Beach to recuperate.

However, after a day of rest, he was reported much improved. A spokesman said Kennedy intended to fly to Washington Tuesday on the delayed final leg of the weekend tour, which took him and Mrs. Kennedy into Latin America.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy spent part of the day in bed and part of it outdoors at a beachfront estate. A comforting sun kept the temperature in the 80s.

Still without a fever and feeling better, Kennedy scheduled a meeting of the National Security Council at the White House for 4 p.m. Tuesday. He expects to leave here at about 9 a.m.

Mrs. Kennedy, who came through the same grueling Latin-American trip without apparent ill effects, will stay in Palm Beach through the Christmas holidays with their children, Caroline and John Jr. The President will rejoin them this weekend.

Salinger described Kennedy as much improved from the cold that nicked him last Friday at the start of his tour.

Doctors examined the president twice during his unscheduled stay at this resort, the second time at 5:30 p.m.

A piercing earache, brought on by the cold and the rapid change of pressure in airplane takeoffs and landing, supplied the painful clincher to Kennedy's abrupt decision to take advantage of a bit of Florida's balmy climate instead of continuing directly to Washington.

All Of Enclave Except Capital City Occupied

Invaders, Backed By Tanks, Planes, Blitz Resistance

By R. STATAKOPAN

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Attacking by land, sea and air, Indian troops blitzed Portuguese resistance and occupied all of Goa except the capital city, the army announced Tuesday. It said Indian troops were entering the Portuguese colonial capital, Nova Goa.

Indian officials asserted the end of 4½ centuries of Portuguese rule over its three enclaves on the subcontinent was imminent. The two smaller of Portugal's three west coast territories—Diu and Damao—were reported taken with little or no resistance.

Obviously confident of complete military victory, Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon named the commander of the invading 17th division, Maj. Gen. Kenneth Candeth, to be governor of Goa.

At Belgaum, on the Goa front south of here, a high Indian source declared that Indian troops, backed by tanks, warships and bombers, had shattered the main resistance in Goa, and full victory was expected before dawn.

Airport Knocked Out

Indian forces knocked out Goa's airport and radio station and disabled the Portuguese fleet offshore, officials claimed. The Indian navy also landed an attack force near the Portuguese naval base at Mormugao as troops from inland approached the capital, Nova Goa, they said.

Capture of Damao and Diu, territories north of Bombay totaling 53 square miles, was claimed at Baroda by the government of adjacent Gujarat State.

At military headquarters in New Delhi, however, it was announced only that Indian vanguards had surrounded Damao's principal town and had entered Diu.

In its first military communique since the outbreak of fighting, Portugal indicated that Indian forces might have overrun Damao. It said information on the fighting had been received from the other enclaves, but that no word had come from Damao.

Troops Welcomed, India Says

A Defense Ministry spokesman in New Delhi said a third of Goa had been taken within 16½ hours after the start of the invasion. Resistance in the enclaves was spotty, almost negligible in some areas, he reported.

He reported major advances by Indian army units from the eastern and northern sides of Goa. At Belgaum, a military spokesman said Goans had welcomed the invaders and showed them where mines were laid by retreating Portuguese forces.

Portugal declared its outnumbered troops fought gallantly and inflicted heavy losses on the Indians at two Goa towns—San Quelim and Sarvona.

Inside Goa, Portuguese Gov. Gen. Vasalo E. Silva declared in an address from the balcony of his office at Nova Goa: "We will resist to the end."

Off the shore, an Indian cruiser and a destroyer, in a 45-minute exchange of fire, drove the Portuguese sloop Alfonso Albuquerque toward the beach, where the ship ran aground.

Dust, Fog, Ice Plague Nation

By The Associated Press

Duststorms, fog and freezing drizzle penetrated into a large section of the Southwest Monday, while the eastern part of the nation was mostly covered with a frozen glaze.

The Weather Bureau said a "freak situation—just one of those things" brought winds up to 72 miles an hour in gusts or portions of Texas' South Plains. The winds carried dust and sand. Near Levilland, Tex., visibility was cut to one-eighth of a mile.

Missouri and Kansas were enveloped in thick fog. Freezing drizzle created hazardous driving conditions in northern Missouri and northeastern Kansas.

Maryland also started the day in a dense fog with two deaths attributed to the ice and fog.

Two deaths also were attributed to slippery highways in the Boston area as driving remained hazardous in Massachuestte, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and southern Maine.

More than one inch of rain fell in six hours at Atlanta, Ga., and Birmington, Ala., measured 3.63 inches in 24 hours.

West Deplores India Attack On Goa, Reds Applaud, Neutrals Back Nehru

LONDON (AP) — Britain sided Monday with its ancient ally Portugal, against Commonwealth partner India in the Goa conflict. The Communists applauded and Western powers deplored the Indian attack.

Such neutrals as Indonesia and the United Arab Republic came to the defense of Prime Minister Nehru, a fellow neutral. But the Western press called the Indian military action violation of the principles so often preached by Nehru.

Britain threw its weight behind a Portuguese appeal to the United Nations.

While ruling out any question of British military action against India, Foreign Secretary Lord Home told Parliament his government would honor its string of ancient treaties with Portugal by opposing India in the U.N. Security Council.

It was a touchy decision for Britain to take against India, the largest nation in the Commonwealth. But Portugal is not only one of Britain's oldest allies, it is one of the 12 charter members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The French Foreign Ministry expressed "astonishment and regret" and the conservative Paris newspaper Aurore commented: "Mr. Nehru has thrown down his mask, violating the charter of the United Nations. The illustrious pandit is not afraid of splashing his white tunic with blood."

State Department officials in Washington made it clear that the United States strongly disapproves India's action.

So did the Netherlands. A Dutch government statesman said it "deplores that, of all countries, it was India, which in the United Nations always campaigned as the champion of the U.N. Charter's principles," that resorted to force.

In Jakarta, an Indonesian foreign office spokesman declared "we are fully aware that India is compelled to use force in spite of the fact that India is a peace-loving nation. There can be no compromise with colonialism." Indonesia has for years threatened to take Dutch New Guinea.

A spokesman for Pakistan, involved in a prolonged dispute with with India over Kashmir, said the Goa invasion was "one more demonstration of the fact that India remains violent and aggressive at heart whatever may be pious statements made from time to time by Indian leaders."

Work Starts On Global Seismograph Network

WASHINGTON (AP)—American scientists are installing a network of supersensitive seismographs in 65 countries and islands to record man-made underground blasts as well as earthquakes.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey said Monday that work began this month, with financial help from the Pentagon, on what eventually will become a network of 125 stations on six continents. It is to be completed next autumn.

The public announcement made no mention of the system's potential usefulness in detecting secret nuclear blasts under the earth's surface.

But when a reporter raised the question, an official said: "That is unquestionably one of the principal objectives."

The difficulty of distinguishing clandestine subsurface nuclear explosions from ordinary earth shocks has been a major obstacle to agreement in the prolonged U.S.-Soviet test ban talks at Geneva.

It was learned that the United States has offered to provide the instruments for sites behind the Iron Curtain. Soviet authorities refused the offer, a spokesman said, on grounds that they are content with their own equipment.

Scientists from the Soviet Union and its satellites will have access to all seismograms produced by the system, however. These will be fed continuously into the coast survey's headquarters at the Commerce Department in Washington. There a photocopy and microfilm service will be maintained, with copies available "to any qualified scientist."

GIs Use Autobahn; No Red Interference

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States sent a combat infantry convoy across the Soviet Zone to West Germany Monday in defiance of a Communist East German protest against such troop movements. The Communists made no attempt to stop it.

The convoy involved 127 troops of Company C, 3rd Battle Group of the U.S. 6th Infantry. The troops, traveling west in three groups of 16 vehicles, cleared the Communists' checkpoints on both ends of the 110-mile autobahn. Neither Soviet nor East German authorities harassed them.

Food—"It's A Bargain"

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman talks to Mrs. Maurice Bresnahan, of Falls Church, Va., in a chain food store at Arlington, Va., where he campaigned personally yesterday to convince housewives that food is a good bargain. He said an hour's wage will buy much more food now than it would 10 years ago. Denying it was a stunt, he said he was trying to focus attention on efforts to work out a suitable farm program to give the farmer a more equitable income. With Mrs. Bresnahan is her 5-year-old daughter, Theresa Ann. (AP Photofax)

Stay Of 'Rider' Trials Refused By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused unanimously Monday to halt prosecutions of "Freedom Riders" in Jackson, Miss., mainly because those who asked a stay apparently were not among those arrested.

Samuel Bailey, Joseph Broadwater, and Burnett L. Jacob had asked for an injuction on behalf of people of their "class," until the questions involved could be tested in the state's courts.

They said a stay would ease what they called the enormous impact and expense inflicted by a "vexatious multiple prosecution program now being carried out" in Mississippi.

The court's brief unsigned order commented that "a federal injunction to stay state criminal proceedings is an extraordinary remedy." Then it went on to say:

"In addition to the considerations normally attending an application for such relief, a serious question of standing is presented on this motion, in that it appears that the movants themselves are not being prosecuted in the Mississippi courts."

Justices Hugo L. Black and Felix Frankfurter, concurred solely on grounds that the three men are not being prosecuted in Mississippi.

The available papers did not identify Bailey, Broadwater, and Jacob or say what their role is with the Freedom Riders.

Apparently the way was left open for individuals facing prosecution in Jackson to ask the Supreme Court for a stay of proceedings and to appeal from a ruling by a three-judge federal court in Mississippi.

The three-judge court on Nov. 17 refused to grant a stay of prosecutions and declined to enjoin state and city officials from enforcing racial segregation under various Mississippi laws. The three-judge court said such issues had to be decided first in state courts.

Democrat Favored In La. House Contest

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Democrat Joe Waggonner remained the favorite over Republican Charlton H. Lyons Sr. as northwest Louisiana's 4th District prepared to elect a successor Tuesday to the late Rep. Overton Brooks.

Some 95,221 persons—97 per cent Democrats—were eligible to vote in an election that saw one of the strongest Republican campaigns in Louisiana in years. A 50 per cent turnout was forecast, with cloudy skies and mild temperature.

Polling places in the seven-parish district were scheduled to be open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Already, 899 persons — above average for an off-year election have cast ballots in absentee voting thta ended last week.

Minuteman Fired 3,600 Miles From Concrete "Silo"

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Air Force Monday fired a Minuteman "instant ICBM" 3,600 miles from a concrete-lined hole in the ground.

The gleaming white rocket vaulted from the 90-foot concrete-lined "silo" at at 11:04 a.m. EST. A little more than 20 minutes later its instrument-loaded nose slammed into a target area in the Atlantic Ocean southeast of the cape.

This was the second straight successful spot of the solid-fueled intercontinental missile from an underground hole, and put the Minuteman program within about one month of its planned schedule.

Plasma Flown To Fire Victims

NITEROI, Brazil (AP)—Urgently needed medical supplies were ferried by helicopter to Niteroi Monday for use in treating the hundreds injured Sunday in the worst circus fire in history.

So far 180 bodies have actually been counted, but an official death toll has yet to be issued. Unofficial sources estimated between 250 and 260 persons were killed in the fire that swept through a nylon circus tent during a crowded afternoon performance.

Police said about 200 of the estimated 500 injured were in critical condition, and many were not expected to live.

In nearby Rio de Janeiro, the U.S. Embassy said it had turned over all medical supplies stocked in North American missions. The United States also is flying in 500 bottles of plasma. Other medical supplies were being flown from Sao Paulo to Rio and then brought across Guanabara Bay to Niteroi by helicopter.

Kennedy, Cold Improved, Stays In Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy, suffering from a heavy head cold, suddenly changed plans for his return to the White House Monday and stayed in Palm Beach to recuperate.

However, after a day of rest, he was reported much improved. A spokesman said Kennedy intended to fly to Washington Tuesday on the delayed final leg of the weekend tour, which took him and Mrs. Kennedy into Latin America.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy spent part of the day in bed and part of it outdoors at a beachfront estate. A comforting sun kept the temperature in the 80s.

Still without a fever and feeling better, Kennedy scheduled a meeting of the National Security Council at the White House for 4 p.m. Tuesday. He expects to leave here at about 9 a.m.

Mrs. Kennedy, who came through the same grueling Latin-American trip without apparent ill effects, will stay in Palm Beach through the Christmas holidays with their children, Caroline and John Jr. The President will rejoin them this weekend.

Salinger described Kennedy as much improved from the cold that nicked him last Friday at the start of his tour.

Doctors examined the president twice during his unscheduled stay at this resort, the second time at 5:30 p.m.

A piercing earache, brought on by the cold and the rapid change of pressure in airplane takeoffs and landing, supplied the painful clincher to Kennedy's abrupt decision to take advantage of a bit of Florida's balmy climate instead of continuing directly to Washington.

All Of Enclave Except Capital City Occupied

Invaders, Backed By Tanks, Planes, Blitz Resistance

By R. STATAKOPAN

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Attacking by land, sea and air, Indian troops blitzed Portuguese resistance and occupied all of Goa except the capital city, the army announced Tuesday. It said Indian troops were entering the Portuguese colonial capital, Nova Goa.

Indian officials asserted the end of 4½ centuries of Portuguese rule over its three enclaves on the subcontinent was imminent. The two smaller of Portugal's three west coast territories—Diu and Damao—were reported taken with little or no resistance.

Obviously confident of complete military victory, Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon named the commander of the invading 17th division, Maj. Gen. Kenneth Candeth, to be governor of Goa.

At Lelgaum, on the Goa front south of here, a high Indian source declared that Indian troops, backed by tanks, warships and bombers, had shattered the main resistance in Goa, and full victory was expected before dawn.

Airport Knocked Out

Indian forces knocked out Goa's airport and radio station and disabled the Portuguese fleet offshore, officials claimed. The Indian navy also landed an attack force near the Portuguese naval base at Mormugao as troops from inland approached the capital, Nova Goa, they said.

Capture of Damao and Diu, territories north of Bombay totaling 53 square miles, was claimed at Baroda by the government of adjacent Gujarat State.

At military headquarters in New Delhi, however, it was announced only that Indian vanguards had surrounded Damao's principal town and had entered Diu.

In its first military communique since the outbreak of fighting, Portugal indicated that Indian forces might have overrun Damao. It said information on the fighting had been received from the other enclaves, but that no word had come from Damao.

Troops Welcomed, India Says

A Defense Ministry spokesman in New Delhi said a third of Goa had been taken within 16½ hours after the start of the invasion. Resistance in the enclaves was spotty, almost negligible in some areas, he reported.

He reported major advances by Indian army units from the eastern and northern sides of Goa. At Belgaum, a military spokesman said Goans had welcomed the invaders and showed them where mines were laid by retreating Portuguese forces.

Portugal declared its outnumbered troops fought gallantly and inflicted heavy losses on the Indians at two Goa towns—San Quelim and Sarvona.

Inside Goa, Portuguese Gov. Gen. Vasalo E. Silva declared in an address from the oalcony of his office at Nova Goa: "We will resist to the end."

Off the shore, an Indian cruiser and a destroyer, in a 45-minute exchange of fire, drove the Portuguese sloop Alfonso Albuquerque toward the beach, where the ship ran aground.

Dust, Fog, Ice Plague Nation

By The Associated Press

Duststorms, fog and freezing drizzle penetrated into a large section of the Southwest Monday, while the eastern part of the nation was mostly covered with a frozen glaze.

The Weather Bureau said a "freak situation—just one of those things" brought winds up to 72 miles an hour in gusts or portions of Texas' South Plains. The winds carried dust and sand. Near Levilland, Tex., visibility was cut to one-eighth of a mile.

Missouri and Kansas were enveloped in thick fog. Freezing drizzle created hazardous driving conditions in northern Missouri and northeastern Kansas.

Maryland also started the day in a dense fog with two deaths attributed to the ice and fog.

Two deaths also were attributed to slippery highways in the Boston area as driving remained hazardous in Massachuestte, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and southern Maine.

More than one inch of rain fell in six hours at Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingtom, Ala., measured 3.63 inches in 24 hours.

West Deplores India Attack On Goa, Reds Applaud, Neutrals Back Nehru

LONDON (AP) — Britain sided Monday with its ancient ally Portugal, against Commonwealth partner India in the Goa conflict. The Communists applauded and Western powers deplored the Indian attack.

Such neutrals as Indonesia and the United Arab Republic came to the defense of Prime Minister Nehru, a fellow neutral. But the Western press called the Indian military action violation of the principles so often preached by Nehru.

Britain threw its weight behind a Portuguese appeal to the United Nations.

While ruling out any question of British military action against India, Foreign Secretary Lord Home told Parliament his government would honor its string of ancient treaties with Portugal by opposing India in the U.N. Security Council.

It was a touchy decision for Britain to take against India, the largest nation in the Commonwealth. But Portugal is not only one of Britain's oldest allies, it is one of the 12 charter members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The French Foreign Ministry expressed "astonishment and regret" and the conservative Paris newspaper Aurore commented: "Mr. Nehru has thrown down his mask, violating the charter of the United Nations. The illustrious pandit is not afraid of splashing his white tunic with blood."

State Department officials in Washington made it clear that the United States strongly disapproves India's action.

So did the Netherlands. A Dutch government statesman said it "deplores that, of all countries, it was India, which in the United Nations always campaigned as the champion of the U.N. Charter's principles," that resorted to force.

In Jakarta, an Indonesian foreign office spokesman declared "we are fully aware that India is compelled to use force in spite of the fact that India is a peace-loving nation. There can be no compromise with colonialism." Indonesia has for years threatened to take Dutch New Guinea.

A spokesman for Pakistan, involved in a prolonged dispute with with India over Kashmir, said the Goa invasion was "one more demonstration of the fact that India remains violent and aggressive at heart whatever may be pious statements made from time to time by Indian leaders."

Work Starts On Global Seismograph Network

WASHINGTON (AP)—American scientists are installing a network of supersensitive seismographs in 65 countries and islands to record man-made underground blasts as well as earthquakes.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey said Monday that work began this month, with financial help from the Pentagon, on what eventually will become a network of 125 stations on six continents. It is to be completed next autumn.

The public announcement made no mention of the system's potential usefulness in detecting secret nuclear blasts under the earth's surface.

But when a reporter raised the question, an official said: "That is unquestionably one of the principal objectives."

The difficulty of distinguishing clandestine subsurface nuclear explosions from ordinary earth shocks has been a major obstacle to agreement in the prolonged U.S.-Soviet test ban talks at Geneva.

It was learned that the United States has offered to provide the instruments for sites behind the Iron Curtain. Soviet authorities refused the offer, a spokesman said, on grounds that they are content with their own equipment.

Scientists from the Soviet Union and its satellites will have access to all seismograms produced by the system, however. These will be fed continuously into the coast survey's headquarters at the Commerce Department in Washington. There a photocopy and microfilm service will be maintained, with copies available "to any qualified scientist."

Supreme Court Rejects River Pact Challenge

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland attorney general's office said Monday a bill creating the Potomac River Compact between Maryland and Virginia will be submitted to Congress shortly after the first of the year.

The announcement came in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to review a referendum on the compact, which defines Maryland's and Virginia's fishing rights in the tidewater section of the river.

A group of watermen from Charles and St. Marys counties had challenged the measure's ratification by Maryland voters participating in the election of November, 1960.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Joseph S. Kaufman said after the high court's action that the way had been cleared for submission of the legislation to Congress, which convenes sometime after Jan. 1.

Passage by Congress would result in implementation of the measure 60 days thereafter, Kaufman said.

Compacts between states do not require the President's signature — by virtue of an exemption provided in the U.S. Constitution, the assistant attorney general explained.

The decision by the U.S. Supreme Court followed the Maryland Court of Appeals' upholding of the compact.

The state's high court rejected the watermen's contention that the referendum failed for lack of legally required advertising. Arguments attacking the treaty's constitutionality also met rejection.

Under the 1958 compact, Maryland and Virginia would jointly regulate fishing rights in the river through a bi-state commission. That body could begin organizing itself any time and thus become ready to begin functioning should Congressional approval materialize.

Savings-Loan Firm To Return Payments

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — The Military Service Savings and Loan Association of Silver Spring was authorized Monday to return $55,828 to depositors who had mailed the money to the firm's office here.

The order was signed by Montgomery County Circuit Judges Thomas M. Anderson and Ralph G. Shure, who placed the association in receivership Nov. 2 upon petition of Atty. Gen. Thomas Finan of Maryland.

Dominicans Smash Statue Of Trujillo

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R. (UPI) —Dominicans put aside their political problems momentarily Monday to join in the destruction in San Cristobal of a 25-foot high bronze figure of the late dictator, Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo.

It took four hours for authorities using a bulldozer and steel cables, to smash the Trujillo figure from the horse on which it was mounted. More than a thousand men, women and children—souvenir hunters—participated in holiday moon.

Geese Finally Take Off For West Indies Island

FREDERICK (AP) — A flock of 25 white geese destined for the island of St. Lucia in the West Indies finally got off the ground Monday.

No one was more relieved than their owner, Harold Weisberg. The Hyattstown, Md., poultry farmer donated the geese several years ago but his desire to help some needy nation became entangled in governmental red tape.

Honking wildly in a drizzling rain, the geese in wire mesh crates were loaded aboard an open bed truck for an overnight ride to New York. Tuesday, they fly south — aboard a Pan American jet bound for the Antigua.

Weisberg breathed a sign of relief as the geese were carted away.

"There must have been at least 50 people who worked trying to make this a real people-to-people success," he said. "They've been wonderful.

"I haven't done anything but work on this since last Wednesday. I've got a week's work to catch up on back at the farm."

Weisberg first offered the geese during the administration of former president Dwight Eisenhower, but got no takers until the Peace Corps came into existence last spring.

The Peace Corps, with the help of Heifer Project Inc., found that St. Lucia could use the geese to keep down weeds on the banana plantations. Heifer Project is a non-profit group which distributes livestock and poultry to areas needing help.

It took 2½ weeks to arrange air transportation for the geese to St. Lucia, a remote island with no regular ship service. Then Weisbert was caught short by word from the government that the geese, instead of leaving from Baltimore at some indefinite date, would depart from New York Saturday.

Necessary papers had been sent to Baltimore, and now would have to be re-routed. That problem was compounded with word the papers were lost. Then the departure date was changed to Tuesday.

The Civil Air Patrol lined up three planes to fly the geese to New York Monday but the weather closed in, canceling that plan. A. E. Meadows, a Frederick van and storage company owner, saved the day by stepping in with a truck and two men to drive it.

Nine Students Draw $50 Fines For "Sit-Ins"

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Nine students charged with trespassing at a segregated Annapolis restaurant Nov. 11 were convicted late Monday by an Anne Arundel County Court jury which deliberated less than 15 minutes.

They were fined $50 and costs each by Judge Benjamin Michaelson, who released them on bond pending the outcome of an appeal.

The all-male white jury returned to the courtroom approximalety 25 minutes after receiving the case. It had rapped on the door approximately 10 minutes earlier to announced it had reached a decision, but another case was in progress.

The students, five white and four Negroes, are all members of the Philadelphia Fellowship House, an interfaith, interracial organization.

They were arrested at Barnes' drive-in restaurant here in a demonstration which began a series of weekend sit-ins at segregated restaurants in Maryland.

Another group of 13 students arrested here the following weekend is to go on trial Tuesday. All waived hearing before magistrates and requested jury trials in circuit court.

A. Leon Higginbotham Jr. of Philadelphia, chief defense counsel, immediately announced plans to appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals. The case involves constitutional questions which are expected to go to the U. S. Supreme Court unless the issue is decided beforehand.

Episcopal Diocese Plans Radio Station

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Episcopal Diocese of Maryland has asked the Federal Communication Commission for permission to build an educational radio station in Baltimore.

The station, believed to be the first of its type, would beam its non-commercial messages on the FM band and would be supported by the church and listeners.

The station plans to program educational forums, full length uninterrupted operas, free time for museums, art galleries during prime time and educational courses similar to those currently being presented on television.

'Nurse' Exposed As Fraud, Fined

BALTIMORE (AP) — A woman who taught obstetrical nursing at one hospital and served as supervisor of nurses at another - doing both jobs without being licensed — was fined Monday as fraud.

Judge Dulany Foster of Criminal Court imposed a fine of $500, then suspended it, for Mrs. Ada Verne Regina DeHart, 55, of Dundalk, Baltimore County. She was charged with unlawfully practicing as a registered nurse.

According to a statement of fact read by James W. Murphy of the state's attorney office, Mrs. DeHart posed as an RN for several years, using the name of a person who was licensed.

She was exposed, Murphy said, when the nurse, whose license Mrs. DeHart was using, left retirement to return to nursing. She found her license active and being used.

Baxter family amazed to find telephone saves $65 in two weeks

Mrs. Baxter makes a call on the phone that kept her in close touch with Gail while Gail was in Miami representing Maryland in the Miss United States Contest.

We recently asked Mrs. Robert E. Baxter, of High Point, to keep a two-week telephone "diary" of all her family's telephone calls—estimating the time, travel and money each call saved. At the end of two weeks, her "diary" showed that their phone calls had saved 42 valuable hours, 799 miles of travel and $65.

"What an enlightening experience this has been," says Mrs. Baxter. "We never dreamed our little Princess phone could save such an amazing amount of time and money."

Mrs. Baxter said that their telephone is important in other ways, too. "While my daughter was in Miami for the Miss United States Contest, my one request was that she call home each night."

What would a telephone "diary" show in your home? Chances are you'd find, too, that your phone gives you back far more than its low monthly cost.

City Approves Pipeline Into Bakery

The Mayor and Council yesterday approved an Ort Brothers Bakery proposal for a flour pipeline from the Western Maryland Railway to its plant on Franklin Street.

The bakery asked that it be allowed to place a steel support in the bed of West Lane between Madison Street and the B&O Railroad right-of-way and the pipe would go at least 16 feet over West Lane and across Madison into the bakery property.

City Attorney William R. Carscaden said that West Lane, an alley, is on Franklin between Madison and Columbia Avenue. At one time it ran to Centre Street but some time ago a portion between Centre and the B&O property was closed. The alley is still open between Columbia Avenue and the B&O right-of-way and the bakery is planning a siding on the Western Maryland for unloading flour mechanically and piping it to its plant. The pipe will go over B&O property, under the overhead bridge and the bakery, it is understood, has permission of the railroad and the State Roads Commission for the project.

The city approval contained a clause under which the city may revoke the permission upon 60 days notice.

In other action yesterday:

Council authorized Mayor J. Edwin Keech and City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery to execute easements with residents of Winifred Road in connection with the cost of an 8-inch water line through Blocks 5B and 6B of Johnson and Dolls Addition.

Rotterdam, destroyed by German bombs 20 years ago, has arisen from the ruins. More than 20,000 vessels visit the Netherlands showcase annually, making it Europes' busiest port.

Public Warned By Police On Shoplifters

The shopping public had this warning from the Police Department: Don't place your packages, wallets and pocketbooks on store counters while making purchases elsewhere.

Both Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief E Frank Gaffney said that the wallets and packages are an invitation to any one inclined to steal.

At the same time, they added, there is the chance that packages and pocketbooks may be picked up in error by other shoppers who won't realize the mistake until they are out of the store or at home.

Chief Gaffney also warned that shoppers who leave packages in their cars should have someone stay in the car if more shopping is to be done. Many packages are lost because car owners do not lock their doors and windows. There is also the possibility even if locks and windows are secure, that windows in unattended cars can be broken and the car entered.

It is better to be cautious than sorry, the chief added.

Talks Urged On North End Problems

Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder said yesterday that some North End residents in a Residential A area are becoming more concerned over activity and stockpiling at Allegany County property in that area.

She said she hoped the city would show enough interest to look into the matter and work for a mutual solution by sitting down and talking over city-county problems with proper authorities.

Lee Marple, local businessman, renewed his appeal for taking parking meters out of operation for the convenience of shoppers who, he said, complain they do not have enough time to get to a store, make a purchase and return, before they are subject to a parking violation. He said he felt covering the meters would be a good-will gesture.

In referring to one-hour meters, Marple was told by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming that the shopping public has its choice of paying for one-to-five hours of parking on present meters. There are no one-hour meters, the commissioner said. Later, he pointed out that in a few areas, there are meters which limit parking to a half hour.

Church To Present Christmas Play

A three-act Christmas play, "The Faithful Pioneer," will be presented at Davis Memorial Methodist Church, Oldtown Road, Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

The central theme of the play is the faith and courage of a pioneer family. The visit of snowbound travelers bring an unexpected surprise and answer to prayer.

The cast members include elementary children, high school students and young adults. They are Treva Silber, Shelby Shryock, Donna Budden, Donald Broome, Raymond Rowley, Beatrice White, Marlene Shank, Brent Biller, Deborah Mackereth and Shirley Zembower.

Ruling Made In Celanese Benefit Cases

The Board of Appeals of the Maryland Department of Employment Security has made a preliminary decision in the claims of a group of employes at the Amcelle plant of Celanese Fibers Company in order to expedite the case and also not delay payment of certain claims pending a final outcome of the matter.

Attorneys Earl E. Manges and Leslie J. Clark for the claimants, and William H. Geppert for the Celanese Fibers Company have entered into a six-point stipulation concerning the preliminary decision.

The Board of Appeals stated that both sides in the matter have agreed that the stoppage of work at the plant ended October 14, 1961. On this basis there is no dispute as to the eligibility for benefits on the issues involved in this case, it was stated.

"As a result of the conference between representatives of the board and counsel for the claimants and the empolyer, the facts and law of the case have been carefully reviewed and, in the interest of the prompt payment of benefits for the periods of time not in issue, certain stipulations have been entered into," the decision relates.

It is expressly agreed that by entering into this stipulation and preliminary decision, counsel for the claimants have not and do not concede that there was at any time a stoppage of work due to a labor dispute, or that there was unemployment on the part of any claimant caused by a work stoppage of work due to a labor dispute.

"That none of the parties to this proceeding disputed a finding by the board to the effect that after October 14, 1961, unemployment on the part of individuals involved in this proceeding was no longer due to a stoppage of work caused by a labor dispute."

In commenting on the case, the board said that a prompt determination as to the termination date of any possible disqualification ought to be reached. Counsel of both sides advise that litigation with respect to the case will be protracted.

The issues prior to the October 14 determination date are still undecided.

City Hall Wiring Job Is Awarded

Sterling Electric Company was awarded the bid of rewiring of City Hall and the City Hall annex yesterday by the Mayor and Council.

Both were on a cost plus 20 per cent basis. The City Hall job is not to exceed $2,500 and the annex project is limited to $1,000.

Council approved the appointment of Judith Ann Hoenicka as a probationary clerk in the Water Department effective December 26. Commissioner G. Ray Light said this is not a new job but a replacement.

Payment of $593.75 to the Maryland Municipal League for annual dues; and $5,928 as partial payment No. 1 to John S. Cook and Son for widening of North Mechanic Street between Bedford and Baltimore streets was authorized.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech was authorized to negotiate with Blair Associates of Washington, D. C., in cooperation with the Maryland Planning Department, on a contract for preparing a master plan for Cumberland.

It is the city's understanding that the local planning operation will be in charge of George T. Marcou who will be here at least five days a month and that John R. Joyner will be assigned as resident engineer, spending at least 50 per cent of the working days here under a two-year contract. Both are Blair employes.

Council, on recommendation of Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming, rejected for the present an application of Harry Molinari Sr., 136 Hanover Street, for a certificate of convenience to operate a taxicab.

Fleming explained that the city has limited the number of certificates to 68 and all are issued. However, if Molinari can obtain one of the permits from a holder, the application will be reconsidered.

Council referred to Fleming a request from the Salvation Army that the Shrine Band equipment truck be allowed to park at its fund house on Baltimore Street December 23 while the band is giving a concert. It was explained that the band also has a concert at the County Home immediately afterwards and that the truck will be needed to transfer the equipment. Fleming said he would try to work out something and give an answer.

Mr. Fleming reported yesterday afternoon that Chief B. F. Gaffney had completed arrangements with the Salvation Army and that a patrolman will be on hand to direct traffic around the kettle house during the concert.

Deed Authorized

The Mayor and clerk were authorized yesterday to execute a deed in favor of John P. Morgan and Jean F. Morgan for Lot 4, in Block 6 of Cumberland Development Company Ridgedale Addition upon receipt of the purchase price of $25; and in favor of the United States for six parcels of land in connection with the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project upon receipt of $3,955.

When X-rays first were discovered, pictures frequently took one hour.

Mrs. Grace More and Mrs. Frances Franze did a polka and Miss King played an organ solo. A "lipstick commercial" was presented by Mrs. Norma Kreitzburg and Miss Joann Wilson.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠

A slight lack of economy in the management of the trump suit proved fatal to declarer today.

West opened the ten of spades which was ducked all around. The suit was continued and ruffed by declarer, who thought it discreet to draw trumps at once. He, therefore, led a low heart and played the ten from dummy, which East gathered in with the ace. A spade was returned, and declarer ruffed with the jack. Had West overruffed, declarer would have brought in the hand, for on regaining the lead he could have drawn both remaining trumps with his queen and cashed all his high cards. But West properly refused to ruff because by making a discard he retained king-nine as a tenace over declarer's queen-six and could not be prevented from winning two trump tricks.

Declarer had handled his trump assets rather wastefully. East's spade bid should have alerted him to the danger of an overruff in that suit, and he should arrange to give as much protection as possible to his heart honors.

Upon winning the second trick, South's best play was to enter dummy by overtaking the king of clubs with the ace and lead the low heart from dummy thru East. East will play low, and South's jack forces the king.

West will presumably get out with a club. South plays the queen from dummy and leads another low heart, not the ten. East will win with the ace and return another spade. Having conserved the ten of hearts in dummy, declarer can now afford to ruff with the queen of hearts and the ten in dummy draws West's remaining trump.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, — Just before Merle Oberon took off for Mexico to spend the holidays with her husband Bruno Pagliai and her children, she told me that she is returning to motion pictures after five years of voluntary retirement.

She will star in "The Forsaken Garden," by Richard Rush, who will also direct her. The story has to do with three people, Merle's brother and her lover. She will play a mature woman, and the movie will be filmed in its entirety in Mexico. Her beautiful home in Cuernevaca will be shown. The producers are the new World Film Corporation and Joseph Schenck Enterprises.

If it's possible for David Jannsen to finish a movie he has to make in Rome in time, he will play the lover role. Merle looks so beautiful these days, that she should be lovely on the screen.

June Havoc, sister of Gypsy Rose Lee whose childhood inspired the hit musical "Gypsy," wasn't originally too happy over the way their youth was portrayed in Ethel Merman's stage musical. But June is bustin' out all over in delight over getting Gower Champion to direct, and David Merrick as the producer of the musical version of her autobiography, "Early Havoc."

June wrote the play herself under the title "Marathon," Merrick was so taken with it he is already seeking a lyricist and composer to do the score for a spring debut on Broadway. Merrick, you remember, also produced "Gypsy."

Gower Champion takes hold as soon as he completes directing Debbie Reynolds in "My Six Loves," at Paramount.

The luncheon Audrey Hepburn, Kurt Frings (her agent) and George Axelrod had at Romanoff's was more than just a social affair. They were discussing a French picture "Holiday For Henrietta," which Axelrod bought and wants to re-make with Audrey and Bill Holden.

William Wyler has been approached to direct the movie, and of course that would delight Audrey, who loves nothing better than working with Wyler. He made her first important picture "Roman Holiday."

Shortly after the end of the war, I visited Denmark and I heard many stories of how the Danish people smuggled some 1200 Jews out of the country under the very noses of the Gestapo. Now the story has been written in Aage Bertelsen's European novel "October '43," revealing the heroism of the Danish nation.

The young Hollywood producers, Irving Pearlberg and Ralph S. Hirshon, have purchased the book after making a trip to Denmark to acquire the rights. They returned not only with the motion picture rights, but with a guarantee of complete cooperation from the Danish Government in filming any scenes in actual locals. With Adolf Eichmann in the news a story of this type is timely.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Best Things In Life Are Free And Posture Is One Of Them

You will be wearing more than your share of evening clothes during the holidays. And nothing is more attractive than a graceful woman "floating" into a room . . . her very action beautiful to see. She wins every glance.

All depends on the way you carry yourself. Without the graceful, poised carriage, you can make an indeterminate flop of the most expensive gown. One slouch and that new formal can be nothing more than just a dress.

Posture is the cornerstone of carriage. How well you stand in turn affects how well you move. It requires only a small bit of thought and practice, but the time devoted must be consistent and thorough. That means you must think everlastingly of eliminating all posture flaws.

While your typing, filing, riding on the bus, doing dishes, listening to a professor in class, or talking with the girls, you can put into effect a few rules for charm — charm of grace:

First, straighten up. Pull your neck out of your shoulders and hold your chin parallel to the floor. Draw your tummy up and in until it feels safely secured and flat as a pancake. Now stretch from the waist up — think of separating the very bottom ribs from the top of the hipbone and enlarge that space. Practice breathing easily but deeply now.

CAN YOU CALCULATE YOUR IDEAL WEIGHT? The answer is "Yes" when you have John Robert Powers' weight-planning pamphlet, "How Much Should You Weigh?" A copy is yours when you send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper.

Kidnap Suspects Are Released

Three suspects in the robbery and kidnaping of a 72-year-old Junction, W. Va., store operator were released Sunday from Hardy County Jail, Moorefield, after being questioned.

Lewis Moomau, prosecuting attorney of Hardy County, said the trio were quizzed on both the robbing of Thomas A. Shoemaker, at Junction Thursday night and also in connection with some Hardy County cases.

Two of the three were taken to Romney during their detainment over the weekend for questioning by troopers from the Romney detachment of State Police.

Parking Receipts Up

Parking meter receipts the week of December 10 amounted to $972.95 compared to $947.35 the week of December 3, an increase of $25 60, Inspector Harry Whisner reported to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, — Just before Merle Oberon took off for Mexico to spend the holidays with her husband Bruno Pagliai and her children, she told me that she is returning to motion pictures after five years of voluntary retirement.

She will star in "The Forsaken Garden," by Richard Rush, who will also direct her. The story has to do with three people, Merle's brother and her lover. She will play a mature woman, and the movie will be filmed in its entirety in Mexico. Her beautiful home in Cuernevaca will be shown. The producers are the new World Film Corporation and Joseph Schenck Enterprises.

If it's possible for David Janssen to finish a movie he has to make in Rome in time, he will play the lover role. Merle looks so beautiful these days, that she should be lovely on the screen.

June Havoc, sister of Gypsy Rose Lee whose childhood inspired the hit musical "Gypsy," wasn't originally too happy over the way their youth was portrayed in Ethel Merman's stage musical. But June is bustin' out all over in delight over getting Gower Champion to direct, and David Merrick as the producer of the musical version of her autobiography, "Early Havoc."

June wrote the play herself under the title "Marathon," Merrick was so taken with it he is already seeking a lyricist and composer to do the score for a spring debut on Broadway. Merrick, you remember, also produced "Gypsy."

Gower Champion takes hold as soon as he completes directing Debbie Reynolds in "My Six Loves," at Paramount.

The luncheon Audrey Hepburn, Kurt Frings (her agent) and George Axelrod had at Romanoff's was more than just a social affair. They were discussing a French picture "Holiday For Henrietta," which Axelrod bought and wants to re-make with Audrey and Bill Holden.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think of a woman who is such a perfectionist that she giftwraps fish?

I had a marvelous catch this morning and my wife decided to split the catch with her sister. When I handed her some newspaper in which to wrap the fish she said "No, I'd prefer to use this." Then she pulled out some silver wrapping paper on which was printed "Many happy returns of the day." She tied the fish securely with some satin ribbon and made a fancy bow. It looked like a gift from Tiffany's.

I always thought she had a few bolts loose and I think this proves it. Do you agree? — D.J.

DEAR D.J.: Not necessarily. Maybe she did it just for the halibut.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago when my sister was 16 she got into trouble and had to go to a home for unwed mothers. MI dad took off while all this was going on so Mom turned to her brother for support and advice.

Uncle Wallace is strict and hard-headed. He never married and I'm sure he really hates kids. He has ordered my sister and me not to have anything to do with boys. I am 16 now and my sister is 18. We can't go any place but to school and to church. If we want to see a movie Saturday afternoon my Mom or Uncle Wallace must accompany us.

We can't invite fellows to the house and no boy can call on the phone. We feel like prisoners. If things don't let up soon we are taking off. Can you help us? — B AND D

DEAR B. AND D.: Your sister's unhappy experience left your mother with no confidence in her own judgment. She turned to your uncle who unfortunately knows nothing about the social or emotional needs of teenagers.

Caging girls and shadowing them will not insure good behavior. It only makes them wilder when they finally get loose.

You need an enlightened adult to speak in your behalf. Ask your mother to phone for an appointment with your favorite teacher or the guidance counselor at school. And hurry.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We had our fourth child in October. I sent out 53 birth announcements to relatives, friends and neighbors. The mailing was done on October 16th. Of the 53 people who were sent cards, 34 have received a gift of one sort or another from me in the past six years. (I keep track.) So far I have received three cards and one gift.

I told my husband last night that I've just about lost faith in humanity. I respond to every announcement as soon as I receive it. He says I'm overly conscientious and that it doesn't pay.

After my recent experience, I think he's right. Do you?—HURT

DEAR HURT: If a disappointing return on your mailing can shatter your faith in humanity, you didn't have much faith to begin with. Since you seem to be statistic-minded, it might interest you to know that direct mail experts kick their heels in the air if they get a 2% response to a mailing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WHISTLE STOP: You haven't had 20 years experience, Mister. You've had one year's experience 20 times. When are you going to get smarter instead of just older?

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think of a woman who is such a perfectionist that she giftwraps fish?

I had a marvelous catch this morning and my wife decided to split the catch with her sister. When I handed her some newspaper in which to wrap the fish she said "No, I'd prefer to use this." Then she pulled out some silver wrapping paper on which was printed "Many happy returns of the day." She tied the fish securely with some satin ribbon and made a fancy bow. It looked like a gift from Tiffany's.

I always thought she had a few bolts loose and I think this proves it. Do you agree? — D.J.

DEAR D.J.: Not necessarily. Maybe she did it just for the halibut.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago when my sister was 16 she got into trouble and had to go to a home for unwed mothers. Mi dad took off while all this was going on so Mom turned to her brother for support and advice.

Uncle Wallace is strict and hard-headed. He never married and I'm sure he really hates kids. He has ordered my sister and me not to have anything to do with boys. I am 16 now and my sister is 18. We can't go any place but to school and to church. If we want to see a movie Saturday afternoon my Mom or Uncle Wallace must accompany us.

We can't invite fellows to the house and no boy can call on the phone. We feel like prisoners. If things don't let up soon we are taking off. Can you help us? — B AND D

DEAR B. AND D.: Your sister's unhappy experience left your mother with no confidence in her own judgment. She turned to your uncle who unfortunately knows nothing about the social or emotional needs of teenagers.

Caging girls and shadowing them will not insure good behavior. It only makes them wilder when they finally get loose.

You need an enlightened adult to speak in your behalf. Ask your mother to phone for an appointment with your favorite teacher or the guidance counselor at school. And hurry.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We had our fourth child in October. I sent out 53 birth announcements to relatives, friends and neighbors. The mailing was done on October 16th. Of the 53 people who were sent cards, 34 have received a gift of one sort or another from me in the past six years. (I keep track.) So far I have received three cards and one gift.

I told my husband last night that I've just about lost faith in humanity. I respond to every announcement as soon as I receive it. He says I'm overly conscientious and that it doesn't pay.

After my recent experience, I think he's right. Do you?—HURT

DEAR HURT: If a disappointing return on your mailing can shatter your faith in humanity, you didn't have much faith to begin with. Since you seem to be statistic-minded, it might interest you to know that direct mail experts kick their heels in the air if they get a 2% response to a mailing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WHISTLE STOP: You haven't had 20 years experience, Mister. You've had one year's experience 20 times. When are you going to get smarter instead of just older?

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Only 60 of the local's 130 members cast ballots in the election as a result of Saturday night's sleet storm.

Thomas O'Neill and Orville Howell served as tellers of the election.

Mrs. Weber offers several tips to those planning to make long distance calls. They are: Dial the number directly if it is possible to do so. Call by number if the number cannot be dialed directly. Call station-to-station. Give the operator the area code number or calling route if you know it. Give the operator a little extra time to answer you. The chances are she's working on a call that is difficult to get through and hanging up to dial again will not expedite the call.

According to Mrs. Weber, the reduced holiday rates go into effect at 6 p. m. on Saturday, December 23, and end on Tuesday, December 26, at 4:30 a. m.

Dystrophy Fund Drive Is Being Closed In Area

The house-to-house phase of the Muscular Dystrophy campaign is about 80 per cent complete, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker, president of the Allegany-Garrett Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Marching kits which are still out, he said may be dropped off at the nearest fire station, or will be picked up if volunteer workers will call Central Fire Station.

Chief Parker also said plans are being made to pick up canisters here, probably this week.

Alvin Rankin, Frostburg, chairman for the drive among volunteer companies, is beginning to pick up containers in the communities of Allegany and Garrett counties.

Progress of the fund campaign was discussed recently as John F. Smith, executive director for the Baltimore District, met here with area MD Association officials.

Christmas Ideas And Fear Of War

Preeminent among festivals of peace stands Christmas. Some will ask what meaning Christmas can have in a world that is constantly confronted by the fear of war.

Does the spirit of the Prince of Peace survive when men fight and die, when governments compete in building armaments, when international clamor and objurgation assail the ear and the specter of atomic warfare chills the mind?

As Christmas approaches, as houses and hearths are decked with greens, as trees are lighted and carols sung, will it be possible to shut out the stricken world, to pretend that all is well, that the peace of Christmas has meaning?

To this question varied answers, not devoid of hope, can be given. One answer is to return to the earliest Christian traditions. Religion means a reverence for life. Christmas, the feast of a Birth, expresses this reverence.

What is the idea of freedom but reverence for life, reverence for the spirit of man, reverence for each individual soul? If it is necessary to fight to protect this freedom, this is without doubt part of the paradox of good and evil, which is part of man's existence on this earth. Americans have made a free choice in favor of freedom. The American people are convinced that this is good.

The Manger, reverence for life—these are one. So the Star will shine once more on this Christmas Eve, and in its radiance faith must be clearer, steadier and stronger.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

American Linguistics

English is the language of the American people, although in some places Spanish is an important secondary prevalent language. It is not to be assumed that all those who settled American territory prior to the Revolution were English-speaking people. Actually, among the earliest settlers were persons who spoke other languages, such as French, Spanish, Portuguese, Dutch, German in various dialects, Swedish, and numerous African languages and dialects. Even 18th Century English was not one dialect of the language; some of the varieties of English are so different that they cannot be understood by other English-speaking people.

Now along comes the City of New York and seeks to have the State Legislature accept any of 27 languages as a measure of literacy for purposes of voting. The evidence for the significance of a language is that a newspaper is published in that language. The City of New York, it is now reported, has 56 daily or weekly newspapers published in a language other than English. The figure used to be much higher but as children go through our schools, they lose the mother-tongue of their parents. They learn some kind of English. For instance, when I was a child, there were five or six daily Yiddish newspapers with sizable circulations. Today only one is important.

The move is, of course, divisive and political. It is the process of catering to the so-called minorities, to frightened and discontented persons who join together on a racial, linguistic or religious basis to protect themselves from the dominant group.

From an American standpoint, the proposal is stupid and baneful. It fragments our people on an irrational basis. From the very beginning of our country it has been a problem to find a basis for intellectual or cultural unity.

We live by a written Constitution which is a product of the development of British history. Those who accepted the Constitution were not necessarily British. Pennsylvania, where the Constitution was actually written, was at that moment inhabited by persons using a number of languages and having varieties of Western European origins.

It was not difficult to establish Anglo-Saxon concepts either for the Articles of Confederation or the Constitution because the Anglo-Saxons were prevalent and the other groups played small roles in Massachusetts or Virginia which were the two most important colonies at the very beginning of American history and they were definitely and unequivocally Anglo-Saxon. Thomas Jefferson who wrote most of the Declaration of Independence and he, Madison, Hamilton and the others engaged in that task were attached to Anglo-Saxon traditions.

Language plays a significant role in the development of a people; it helps the mind to accept institutions. Prior to the 1880's, this country was homogeneous politically and was spiritually stronger than it is today. The need for absorbing immigrants by the million from all parts of the world, associated large numbers of potential citizens and voters to whom Anglo-Saxon traditions were alien and whose cultures were different and varied with this country and its established habits.

The earlier immigrants of a particular group were anxious that people of their kind be assimilated in American life. In this effort, the social settlement and the public schools played a potent role. They entered upon what they then called Americanization programs, most of which were effective and successful, although two countermovements developed simultaneously, namely, the fight of foreign-language newspapers to encourage nationalism of origin and the development of defense organizations to lessen the abuse of new immigrants.

The trend toward assimilation seemed to be successful until the increased immigration of aliens subsequent to the universal depression of the 1920's. This is particularly significant in relation to the huge immigration of Central American people, particularly Puerto Ricans who have been rejected by both the American Negro and the American white. Such a rejection is not unusual; the Irish and the Jews have experienced a similar exclusion in its most undignified forms. As the Puerto Ricans were immediate citizens because Puerto Rico is part of the United States, the politicians have catered to them unduly and resentment to their presence has been increasing among others. The proposal to have 27 languages to provide evidence of literacy is a manifestation of the development of minority power in New York and a continued fragmentation of our particular culture.

'And We Must Show Restraint–'

National Security Council Use Quite Different

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

The different use to be made of the National Security Council is probably the biggest change among the many changes in governmental practice which separate the Kennedy administration from the Eisenhower administration.

Such, at any rate, is the opinion of the few surviving insiders who really know what goes on in the U. S. government's inner sanctum—the NSC—and are also able to compare the practices of the new Administration with the practices of the old. From the outside, it is not easy to judge this altered use of the NSC. But as described by those who should know, it is highly significant, as will be seen.

In the Eisenhower time, the National Security Council was a very much larger, more cumbersome, and more authoritative human machine. It led, so to say, far more of a life of its own, in semi-independence of the White House. Above all, this Eisenhower NSC turnde out policy papers quite different in character from those now produced.

To be specific, the Eisenhower-era NSC papers attempted to say what the national policy was. It sought to define the underlying principles and aims, in a way that would control future decisions. Pretty often, to be sure, the definitions merely papered over divergences and contradictions.

For instance, a big paper on basic national security policy always used to be prepared at the beginning of every year. It opened, invariably, with a grandiose assertion that America's strength must be second to none. But this assertion was always followed by another clause, explaining that America's strength depended on fiscal and economic soundness. And this in turn meant that military strength was always subordinated, in the end, to the balanced budget.

Yet despite this sort of thing, which was apparently quite common, the Eisenhower NSC at least tried to formulate broad, fundamental, and controlling definitions. The difference between then and now can best be judged by a single authoritatively reported fact. This fact is that the Kennedy administration's 1961 version of the customary annual paper on basic national security policy has never been completed to this day, although New Year's of 1962 now looms directly ahead.

Broad definitions, of the sort that might control the future decisions, are in fact no longer attempted by the Kennedy NSC. National Security Council papers nowadays are described as being factual rather than theoretical, filled with details instead of generalizations, and aimed to clarify choices instead of imposing choices.

The facts are included, obviously, because the new President is the kind of man who wants all the facts before he makes a choice. The generalizations are not there, presumably, because the President is expected to make his own choice on the basis of the facts, without reference to anything but the facts, and in accordance with principles and definitions which he carries around in the back of his own head.

The difference between the two ways of doing business is not easy to pinpoint when all the documents are highly classified and the whole process goes on behind closed doors. Nevertheless, the difference is vitally important, and needs to be recorded and understood, as a single illustration will show.

Eisenhower's famous "New Look" at the American defense program was not finally approved, in the autumn of 1953, before the issues involved had been elaborately thrashed out at many governmental levels. The existence of the argument was known. The points at issue were known. And in the outcome, it was known that the Eisenhower administration's "New Look" meant the abandonment of the old concept of a balanced defense, and called for future reliance on a defense system entirely keyed to the nuclear weapons.

In the Kennedy era, in contrast, this kind of drastic revision of national policy can and does occur almost imperceptibly. A series of practical decisions may be made, about a series of related practical problems. Each decision will be based on strictly factual data. No broad generalizations will be attempted, which might tie all these decisions into a single coherent pattern. But the decisions will form a pattern, nonetheless, and the pattern will involve a sharp alteration of national policy and direction.

All this is relevant, because just this kind of new direction is quite clearly discernible in the countless decisions embodied in the record peace-time defense budget which will shortly be presented to Congress. One of the two reasons why the Congress will be asked to vote close to $53 billion for defense this year is well known. The Kennedy administration has thoroughly publicized the requirement for more adequate ground and other conventionally-armed forces.

But the other reason for the size of this defense budget is a change in the approach to the nuclear deterrent. It is a crucial, complex, but as yet unspoken change. It will be examined in two further reports.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

ART THEFT—Museum curators, art dealers and collectors around the world have been trembling in their boots over the recent wave of art thefts of their treasures. And now, Washington can lay claim to being one of the cities which has suffered at the hands of the unscrupulous.

However, the Washington theft was far from a Mona Lisa. It was the original of a painting for a magazine cover for the Saturday Evening Post. And the theft of the painting, valued at $1,200, was not from a museum or dealer, but from the seat of a parked car.

The picture was shipped to a Washington engraving plant for processing, and was being returned to Philadelphia when the theft occurred. Because the work had been completed, it will cause no inconvenience to the magazine which will publish it in its first January issue.

Painted by Gyo Fujikawa, it depicts a parakeet in a cage hanging at a window, with snow falling and a little bird outside pressing against the glass. In a few weeks subscribers to the magazine have only to look at its cover to completely identify the stolen art object.

Meanwhile, the Washington police take a dim view of the occurrence. They've assigned a crew of detectives to the case and are treating it as if a Rembrandt had been filched.

And Washington Art Museum heads are just a little more worried than they have been about the presence of sneak thieves among their viewers.

Experts Study Khrushchev's Humor For Clues To Personality, Policies

By Jack Anderson

(Editor's Note — While Drew Pearson is in South America his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Kremlinologists (as the experts are called who try to figure out what the Kremlin will do next; are now studying Nikita Khrushchev's humor for clues to his contradictory personality and complex policies.

If he weren't the Red Czar of all the Russias, certainly he could be a smash hit as a blue-nosed comedian. He can beat most quipsters to the punchline or outclown any baggy-pants comic who ever waddled acress a burlesque stage.

For the cock of the Kremlin understands his Marx, both Karl and Groucho.

There also can be no doubt that Khrushchev uses his robust, earthy, peasant wit to disarm and confound his opponents. But behind his jocular diplomacy, he is a ham at heart.

His clowning doesn't always amuse his wife, Nina, who is concerned about his dignity. She sometimes suffers the agonies of a soul mate whose husband is determined to be the life of the party.

With reproving glances and shakes of her gray head, the stout, matronly Nina will remind her consort of his position as First Comrade.

She exercised a restraining influence on him, for instance, during their tour of the United States. On the set of the Hollywood film "Can-Can," Nikita was seen chuckling with delight at the dancers' gaily kicking legs.

Khrushchev Henpecked?

But Nina's lips were pursed in the thin line of annoyance. It was at her insistence, says movie mogul Eric Johnston who sat next to them, that the dictator tied the wifely line and issued his now famous condemnation of Hollywood art.

"In the Soviet Union," he declared with tongue in cheek, "We would rather look at people's faces than at their bottoms."

His interpreter gulped hard and came up with this more pious translation: "Humanity's face is more beautiful than it backside."

Again in San Francisco, Nikita could not repress his natural ebullience. When a longshoreman popped his white cap on Khrushchev's head, Nikita at once handed the dock worker his own ray fedora, exclaimed "This is an exchange for peace," and went off happily hamming it up for the photographers in his new headgear.

But Nina gently plucked at his sleeve; sheepishly, Khrushchev removed the cap and handed it to an aide.

The Soviet leader particularly enjoyed teasing the towering, dignifying Henry Cabot Lodge who was his special escort. At San Luis Obispo, the crowd was so thick Nikita had to fight his way aboard the train. He looked around, saw Lodge still struggling, and shouted mischievously: "Save Lodge!"

He also ribbed Lodge about capitalism. Citing American whiskey as an example, he told of the Russian who took a swig, then grumped: "Call that a drink? You've just invented the stuff and already you're diluting it with water."

Stalin's Jester

Even as a young party worker, Khrushchev was quick with wits and words. Uneducated, he spoke coarse, crude, barnyard language, defended it typically with a quip.

"If I am going to spend my life teaching workers and peasants the ideals of socialism," he said, "I have to speak as badly as they do."

He still despises the prim party eggheads.

Khrushchev first caught Stalin's attention when he was a local party secretary in the Ukraine. The cold, cruel Stalin enjoyed putting uneasy officials through the party catechism and watching them squirm.

When he got to Khrushchev, the dictator demanded: "How do you define Communism?"

Nikita took his courage in both hands and tossed the book aside.

"To an audience of peasants," he replied, "I'd say that Communism first of all means a full stomach, then felt boots, and a sheepskin jacket."

Stalin was pleased. From that moment, Khrushchev's star was on the rise. But it was not the smooth, soaring flight of one of his modern sputniks.

Stalin's humor was grim, and Khrushchev, as the Kremlin buffoon, never knew when a bad joke might earn him a bullet.

Dancing Commissar

The terrible Stalin frequently humiliated Khrushchev. But the worst insult was an order to dance the Gopak before top officials. This is the Cossack dance, which involves squatting on the heels and kicking out the legs, an ordeal for the pudgy Khrushchev.

He managed to perform it, sweat running down his grinning face. It earned him the nickname, "the dancing commissar," which Stalin's wife gaily gave him.

Later, Nikita explained to his friend, Anastas Mikoyan: "When Stalin says dance, a wise man dances."

Throughout the darkest days of World War II, Khrushchev's humor stood by him. He was in charge of ferrying supplies across the Volga on pontoons when his convoy was shot to pieces by the Germans.

He explained the loss to his superiors with the wisecrack: "The fish got the supplies. They're biting tonight."

His rise to power through the gloomy labyrinth of Stalinist terror has given him humor a brutal, savage edge. Although he despised Stalin for his cruel humor, Khrushchev now also enjoys a joke at the expense of his subordinates.

In front of foreigners, he pointed to his red-faced Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and remarked deprisively: "If I told him to take down his pants and sit on ice, he would do so."

A veteran diplomat, fluent in Russian and wise in the ways of Khrushchev, agrees that the Soviet leader is a master of gut humor.

"But," he warns, "Always remember that, no matter how much he jokes, Khrushchev must be taken seriously."

Chimps And Art

By John Crosby

The arts are in a state of ferment almost as confusing and explosive as the internal affairs of the Congo. The Metropolitan Museum, we all know, had just shelled out $2,300,000 for a Rembrandt called "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" when the rumors started flying that it isn't Aristotle. It's maybe Virgil or maybe not even him. Is Virgil worth two million three? Or was Aristotle, for that matter? Is it really Homer? Or Rembrandt?

It's enough to shatter one's faith in the management of our greatest museum (or junk shop, depending on how you feel about old armor and fake Etruscan statues) if your faith hasn't already been slightly shaken by that price and the lingering suspicion that Mr. James Rorimer, director of the Metropolitan, wasn't felled by auction fever rather than simply gripped by bad judgment.

Right on top of that, a lady stepped up to a guard at the Museum of Modern Art and said coldly: "Sir, your Martisse is upside down." Surely this is an historic utterance, deserving to be ranked with "Apres moi le deluge" or "Let 'em eat cake" or maybe even "A black frog cannot be whitewashed" (Khrushchev) or "I'll stick to my camel" (that Jakistani camel driver after being driven in a Cadillac from Herald Square to Radio City in the noontime traffic). It has always been my feeling that the most shattering thing you can say to a man is: "Sir, your fly is open," but perhaps "Sir, your Matisse is upside down" or more civilized though, of course, you can't use it just everywhere.

The fact that a Matisse hung upside down for forty-seven days before anyone discovered it is a significant and rather depressing commentary on the upside-downess and way-outness of art in general. (A Braque was put in the catalogue of the Louvre upside down, too.) There are other signs that the art world is either decadent or looney or both. A chimpanzee named Beauty, who has been finger-painting for six months, held her first exhibition of abstracts at the Bianchini Gallery and sold eighty paintings which ranged in price from twenty-five dollars to ninety-five dollars.

I saw a good many of Beauty's paintings and two thoughts struck me. The first and simplest: Beauty is a hell of a name to tag an artist with. (If they'd called her Piscasso or Laurencin, it'd be easier for posterity to evaluate her work.) The second and denser thought is that Beauty is far closer to Jackson Pollock than she is to Michaelangelo. In fact, there are some of us who think she has already overtaken Pollock and, when you think it took the human race 405 years to progress from the Sistine Chapel to Jackson Pollock and that the apes got there in a single bound, it makes you wonder. At least it makes me wonder whether the apes are making enormous strides forward to the people world — or whether people are making enormous strides backwards to the ape world.

Of course, if it'll make you feel any better, the Russians are having their troubles in the art world, too. While we're mumbling apologies and hanging the Matisses and the Braques right side up, they've had to take down all those statues of Stalin, including one in Prague that was over forty feet high. Our mistaken judgements are easier and much less expensive to rectify. (What do they call steel in Russia these days? Volga?)

Meanwhile, the general dizziness has not exactly avoided the world of music. Carnegie Recital Hall the other day was the setting for a concert of the works of Yoke One. Against a taped background of mumbled words and wild laughter, a girl spoke earnestly about peeling a grapefruit, squeezing lemons, and counting the hairs on a dead child. The instruments went squeep, squawp. The hall was packed. (Well, what can a composer do when all the best violinists are in the Air Force, playing at White House parties?)

Meanwhile, the architests are not letting the art of music world get too far out in front of them in the field of general looniness. No chimpanzees, so far as I know, have designed any of those glass buildings but — well, how else are we to explain the Summit Hotel? Actually the Summit Hotel was designed by Morris Lapidus, of whom "The Nation's" architectural critic, Walter McQuade, has said, "He is an interesting architect with a strange specialty — bad taste."

It's a comfort to be able to report that the stage is showing signs of a return to sanity. The finest play around is "A Man for All Seasons," a severely disciplined, intensely reasonable, even classical study of power and morality among kings and chancellors. Last year there was "Beckett" and perhaps we're on the brink of a return to a classic concern with the greatness of the gods and the lives of the high born.

Of course, on the other hand, Broadway also boasts "The Caretaker," which is as far outs as a playwright can go and still stay inside the confines of language, so let's not let our optimism run away with us in that area either.

Medication Replacing Bed Rest For TB Patient

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The treatment of tuberculosis has undergone many changes in the last 30 years. Bed rest, once considered the keystone of tuberculosis management, now is playing only a minor role, according to the American Thoracic society. The committee on therapy of this organization advocates increased levels of activity?

Bed rest is of value when the victim has high fever, weakness, pain, shortness of breath, or a productive cough. But the majority of victims are put on medication and advised to remain active. Thus bed rest joins sunbathing as a remedy of the past. The same applies to "chasing the cure." The patient no longer goes to Denver or to the southwest. He can get well in Chicago, Boston or wherever he lives, provided antituberculosis preparations and surgical procedures are available.

When tuberculosis develops, the person is likely to ask if he can be treated at home. Some can, but patients who are contagious expose the family to the disease. Institutional care is better at first where isolation is easy while the sputum tests are positive.

In addition, the hospital has the facilities to do diagnostic, sputum, and other tests and to rule out chest disorders that mimic tuberculosis. Furthermore, modern treatment requires the use of streptomycin, PAS, or isoniazid—all products that must be used properly and with caution.

The need for various procedures can be assessed more adequately in a hospital or sanitorium. Moreover, there is no better place to obtain an education on how to care for and to prevent recurrences.

Surgery is recommended when cavities fail to respond to medication within a given time. This is best determined when the individual is under close scrutiny. Operations of this type often save months of care and bring earlier recovery.

TOMORROW: Childhood insomnia.

2 PLUS

F. S. writes: What does 2 plus mean in a stool test for blood?

REPLY

Chemical tests for blood in the stools are graded from one to four plus. A two plus is not enough for concern.

EXCESS IRON

A. M. writes: If you take a lot of iron tablets, will the body throw off what it doesn't need?

REPLY

Yes. The body is selective when it comes to iron and absorbs only what it needs. The excess passes through the intestinal tract, causing the stools to turn black.

RELATED SENSES

B. J. writes: I have no sense of smell and my friends claim I can't taste unless I can smell food. What is your opinion?

REPLY

A relationship exists between the two senses. Taste may be dulled a bit if the sense of smell is lost. But you should know better than your friends whether you can taste your food.

BLEEDING UNDER SKIN

J. H. writes: Does vitamin C prevent bruises?

REPLY

Only when bleeding under the skin is caused by scurvy.

THE BOIL AGE

P. B. E. writes: Is old age an invitation to boils?

REPLY

Yes, if you are slipping into elderly adolescence.

LIVER AND CANCER

M. O. writes: Is it true that eating liver encourages cancer?

REPLY

No. The cause of cancer is not known but we might all have the disease if eating liver were responsible.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

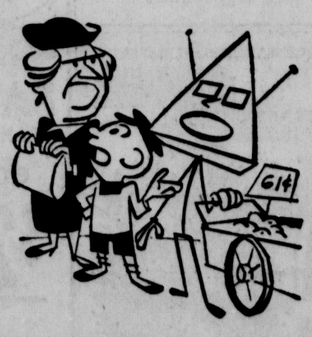
Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

One of those space travelers with a triangular head, square eyes, and ears made of piano wire landed on Delancey Street in New York and scared a push-cart peddler into fainting on the spot. The traveler thought the least he could do was tend the cart until the peddler recovered.

A youngster, passing by with his mother, gulped hard, and said, "Mom, isn't that the craziest looking vegetable peddler you ever did see?"

The mother admitted grimly, "He may look crazy, but you'll notice he's getting 61 cents a pound for his potatoes!"



A grass-roots Democrat was engaged in a heated discussion with his opposite number on the Republican side, while friends egged them on to keep the pot boiling. Proclaimed the Democrat, "There are a thousand ways to make money in politics, but only one honest way." "And what's that?" jeered the Republican. "Ho, ho!" beamed the Democrat. "I was sure you wouldn't know."

Christmas Ideas And Fear Of War

Preeminent among festivals of peace stands Christmas. Some will ask what meaning Christmas can have in a world that is constantly confronted by the fear of war.

Does the spirit of the Prince of Peace survive when men fight and die, when governments compete in building armaments, when international clamor and objurgation assail the ear and the specter of atomic warfare chills the mind?

As Christmas approaches, as houses and hearths are decked with greens, as trees are lighted and carols sung, will it be possible to shut out the stricken world, to pretend that all is well, that the peace of Christmas has meaning?

To this question varied answers, not devoid of hope, can be given. One answer is to return to the earliest Christian traditions. Religion means a reverence for life. Christmas, the feast of a Birth, expresses this reverence.

What is the idea of freedom but reverence for life, reverence for the spirit of man, reverence for each individual soul? If it is necessary to fight to protect this freedom, this is without doubt part of the paradox of good and evil, which is part of man's existence on this earth. Americans have made a free choice in favor of freedom. The American people are convinced that this is good.

The Manger, reverence for life—these are one. So the Star will shine once more on this Christmas Eve, and in its radiance faith must be clearer, steadier and stronger.

These Days

American Linguistics

English is the language of the American people, although in some places Spanish is an important secondary prevalent language. It is not to be assumed that all those who settled American territory prior to the Revolution were English-speaking people. Actually, among the earliest settlers were persons who spoke other languages, such as French, Spanish, Portuguese, Dutch, German in various dialects, Swedish, and numerous African languages and dialects. Even 18th Century English was not one dialect of the language; some of the varieties of English are so different that they cannot be understood by other English-speaking people.

Now along comes the City of New York and seeks to have the State Legislature accept any of 27 languages as a measure of literacy for purposes of voting. The evidence for the significance of a language is that a newspaper is published in that language. The City of New York, it is now reported, has 56 daily or weekly newspapers published in a language other than English. The figure used to be much higher but as children go through our schools, they lose the mother-tongue of their parents. They learn some kind of English. For instance, when I was a child, there were five or six daily Yiddish newspapers with sizable circulations. Today only one is important.

The move is, of course, divisive and political. It is the process of catering to the so-called minorities, to frightened and discontented persons who join together on a racial, linguistic or religious basis to protect themselves from the dominant group.

From an American standpoint, the proposal is stupid and baneful. It fragments our people on an irrational basis. From the very beginning of our country it has been a problem to find a basis for intellectual or cultural unity.

We live by a written Constitution which is a product of the development of British history. Those who accepted the Constitution were not necessarily British. Pennsylvania, where the Constitution was actually written, was at that moment inhabited by persons using a number of languages and having varieties of Western European origins.

National Security Council Use Quite Different

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

The different use to be made of the National Security Council is probably the biggest change among the many changes in governmental practice which separate the Kennedy administration from the Eisenhower administration.

Such, at any rate, is the opinion of the few surviving insiders who really know what goes on in the U. S. government's inner sanctum—the NSC—and are also able to compare the practices of the new Administration with the practices of the old. From the outside, it is not easy to judge this altered use of the NSC. But as described by those who should know, it is highly significant, as will be seen.

In the Eisenhower time, the National Security Council was a very much larger, more cumbersome, and more authoritative human machine. It led, so to say, far more of a life of its own, in semi-independence of the White House. Above all, this Eisenhower NSC turnde out policy papers quite different in character from those now produced.

To be specific, the Eisenhower-era NSC papers attempted to say what the national policy was. It sought to define the underlying principles and aims, in a way that would control future decisions. Pretty often, to be sure, the definitions merely papered over divergences and contradictions.

For instance, a big paper on basic national security policy always used to be prepared at the beginning of every year. It opened, invariably, with a grandiose assertion that America's strength must be second to none. But this assertion was always followed by another clause, explaining that America's strength depended on fiscal and economic soundness. And this in turn meant that military strength was always subordinated, in the end, to the balanced budget.

Yet despite this sort of thing, which was apparently quite common, the Eisenhower NSC at least tried to formulate broad, fundamental, and controlling definitions. The difference between then and now can best be judged by a single authoritatively reported fact. This fact is that the Kennedy administration's 1961 version of the customary annual paper on basic national security policy has never been completed to this day, although New Year's of 1962 now looms directly ahead.

Broad definitions, of the sort that might control the future decisions, are in fact no longer attempted by the Kennedy NSC. National Security Council papers nowadays are described as being factual rather than theoretical, filled with details instead of generalizations, and aimed to clarify choices instead of imposing choices.

The facts are included, obviously, because the new President is the kind of man who wants all the facts before he makes a choice. The generalizations are not there, presumably, because the President is expected to make his own choice on the basis of the facts, without reference to anything but the facts, and in accordance with principles and definitions which he carries around in the back of his own head.

The difference between the two ways of doing business is not easy to pinpoint when all the documents are highly classified and the whole process goes on behind closed doors. Nevertheless, the difference is vitally important, and needs to be recorded and understood, as a single illustration will show.

Eisenhower's famous "New Look" at the American defense program was not finally approved, in the autumn of 1953, before the issues involved had been elaborately thrashed out at many governmental levels. The existence of the argument was known. The points at issue were known. And in the outcome, it was known that the Eisenhower administration's "New Look" meant the abandonment of the old concept of a balanced defense, and called for future reliance on a defense system entirely keyed to the nuclear weapons.

In the Kennedy era, in contrast, this kind of drastic revision of national policy can and does occur almost imperceptibly. A series of practical decisions may be made, about a series of related practical problems. Each decision will be based on strictly factual data. No broad generalizations will be attempted, which might tie all these decisions into a single coherent pattern. But the decisions will form a pattern, nonetheless, and the pattern will involve a sharp alteration of national policy and direction.

All this is relevant, because just this kind of new direction is quite clearly discernible in the countless decisions embodied in the record peace-time defense budget which will shortly be presented to Congress. One of the two reasons why the Congress will be asked to vote close to $53 billion for defense this year is well known. The Kennedy administration has thoroughly publicized the requirement for more adequate ground and other conventionally-armed forces.

But the other reason for the size of this defense budget is a change in the approach to the nuclear deterrent. It is a crucial, complex, but as yet unspoken change. It will be examined in two further reports.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

ART THEFT—Museum curators, art dealers and collectors around the world have been trembling in their boots over the recent wave of art thefts of their treasures. And now, Washington can lay claim to being one of the cities which has suffered at the hands of the unscrupulous.

However, the Washington theft was far from a Mona Lisa. It was the original of a painting for a magazine cover for the Saturday Evening Post. And the theft of the painting, valued at $1,200, was not from a museum or dealer, but from the seat of a parked car.

The picture was shipped to a Washington engraving plant for processing, and was being returned to Philadelphia when the theft occurred. Because the work had been completed, it will cause no inconvenience to the magazine which will publish it in its first January issue.

Painted by Gyo Fujikawa, it depicts a parakeet in a cage hanging at a window, with snow falling and a little bird outside pressing against the glass. In a few weeks subscribers to the magazine have only to look at its cover to completely identify the stolen art object.

Meanwhile, the Washington police take a dim view of the occurrence. They've assigned a crew of detectives to the case and are treating it as if a Rembrandt had been filched.

And Washington Art Museum heads are just a little more worried than they have been about the presence of sneak thieves among their viewers.

Chimps And Art

By John Crosby

The arts are in a state of ferment almost as confusing and explosive as the internal affairs of the Congo. The Metropolitan Museum, we all know, had just shelled out $2,300,000 for a Rembrandt called "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" when the rumors started flying that it isn't Aristotle. It's maybe Virgil or maybe not even him. Is Virgil worth two million three? Or was Aristotle, for that matter? Is it really Homer? Or Rembrandt?

It's enough to shatter one's faith in the management of our greatest museum (or junk shop, depending on how you feel about old armor and fake Etruscan statues) if your faith hasn't already been slightly shaken by that price and the lingering suspicion that Mr. James Rorimer, director of the Metropolitan, wasn't felled by auction fever rather than simply gripped by bad judgment.

Right on top of that, a lady stepped up to a guard at the Museum of Modern Art and said coldly: "Sir, your Martisse is upside down." Surely this is an historic utterance, deserving to be ranked with "Apres moi le deluge" or "Let 'em eat cake" or maybe even "A black frog cannot be whitewashed" (Khrushchev) or "I'll stick to my camel" (that Jakistani camel driver after being driven in a Cadillac from Herald Square to Radio City in the noontime traffic). It has always been my feeling that the most shattering thing you can say to a man is: "Sir, your fly is open," but perhaps "Sir, your Matisse is upside down" or more civilized though, of course, you can't use it just everywhere.

The fact that a Matisse hung upside down for forty-seven days before anyone discovered it is a significant and rather depressing commentary on the upside-downess and way-outness of art in general. (A Braque was put in the catalogue of the Louvre upside down, too.) There are other signs that the art world is either decadent or looney or both. A chimpanzee named Beauty, who has been finger-painting for six months, held her first exhibition of abstracts at the Bianchini Gallery and sold eighty paintings which ranged in price from twenty-five dollars to ninety-five dollars.

I saw a good many of Beauty's paintings and two thoughts struck me. The first and simplest: Beauty is a hell of a name to tag an artist with. (If they'd called her Piscasso or Laurencin, it'd be easier for posterity to evaluate her work.) The second and denser thought is that Beauty is far closer to Jackson Pollock than she is to Michaelangelo. In fact, there are some of us who think she has already overtaken Pollock and, when you think it took the human race 405 years to progress from the Sistine Chapel to Jackson Pollock and that the apes got there in a single bound, it makes you wonder. At least it makes me wonder whether the apes are making enormous strides forward to the people world — or whether people are making enormous strides backwards to the ape world.

Of course, if it'll make you feel any better, the Russians are having their troubles in the art world, too. While we're mumbling apologies and hanging the Matisses and the Braques right side up, they've had to take down all those statues of Stalin, including one in Prague that was over forty feet high. Our mistaken judgements are easier and much less expensive to rectify. (What do they call steel in Russia these days? Volga?)

Meanwhile, the general dizziness has not exactly avoided the world of music. Carnegie Recital Hall the other day was the setting for a concert of the works of Yoke One. Against a taped background of mumbled words and wild laughter, a girl spoke earnestly about peeling a grapefruit, squeezing lemons, and counting the hairs on a dead child. The instruments went squeep, squawp. The hall was packed. (Well, what can a composer do when all the best violinists are in the Air Force, playing at White House parties?)

Meanwhile, the architests are not letting the art of music world get too far out in front of them in the field of general looniness. No chimpanzees, so far as I know, have designed any of those glass buildings but — well, how else are we to explain the Summit Hotel? Actually the Summit Hotel was designed by Morris Lapidus, of whom "The Nation's" architectural critic, Walter McQuade, has said, "He is an interesting architect with a strange specialty — bad taste."

It's a comfort to be able to report that the stage is showing signs of a return to sanity. The finest play around is "A Man for All Seasons," a severely disciplined, intensely reasonable, even classical study of power and morality among kings and chancellors. Last year there was "Beckett" and perhaps we're on the brink of a return to a classic concern with the greatness of the gods and the lives of the high born.

Of course, on the other hand, Broadway also boasts "The Caretaker," which is as far outs as a playwright can go and still stay inside the confines of language, so let's not let our optimism run away with us in that area either.

Medication Replacing Bed Rest For TB Patient

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The treatment of tuberculosis has undergone many changes in the last 30 years. Bed rest, once considered the keystone of tuberculosis management, now is playing only a minor role, according to the American Thoracic society. The committee on therapy of this organization advocates increased levels of activity?

Bed rest is of value when the victim has high fever, weakness, pain, shortness of breath, or a productive cough. But the majority of victims are put on medication and advised to remain active. Thus bed rest joins sunbathing as a remedy of the past. The same applies to "chasing the cure." The patient no longer goes to Denver or to the southwest. He can get well in Chicago, Boston or wherever he lives, provided antituberculosis preparations and surgical procedures are available.

When tuberculosis develops, the person is likely to ask if he can be treated at home. Some can, but patients who are contagious expose the family to the disease. Institutional care is better at first where isolation is easy while the sputum tests are positive.

In addition, the hospital has the facilities to do diagnostic, sputum, and other tests and to rule out chest disorders that mimic tuberculosis. Furthermore, modern treatment requires the use of streptomycin, PAS, or isoniazid—all products that must be used properly and with caution.

The need for various procedures can be assessed more adequately in a hospital or sanitorium. Moreover, there is no better place to obtain an education on how to care for and to prevent recurrences.

Surgery is recommended when cavities fail to respond to medication within a given time. This is best determined when the individual is under close scrutiny. Operations of this type often save months of care and bring earlier recovery.

TOMORROW: Childhood insomnia.

2 PLUS

F. S. writes: What does 2 plus mean in a stool test for blood?

REPLY

Chemical tests for blood in the stools are graded from one to four plus. A two plus is not enough for concern.

EXCESS IRON

A. M. writes: If you take a lot of iron tablets, will the body throw off what it doesn't need?

REPLY

Yes. The body is selective when it comes to iron and absorbs only what it needs. The excess passes through the intestinal tract, causing the stools to turn black.

RELATED SENSES

B. J. writes: I have no sense of smell and my friends claim I can't taste unless I can smell food. What is your opinion?

REPLY

A relationship exists between the two senses. Taste may be dulled a bit if the sense of smell is lost. But you should know better than your friends whether you can taste your food.

BLEEDING UNDER SKIN

J. H. writes: Does vitamin C prevent bruises?

REPLY

Only when bleeding under the skin is caused by scurvy.

THE BOIL AGE

P. B. E. writes: Is old age an invitation to boils?

REPLY

Yes, if you are slipping into elderly adolescence.

LIVER AND CANCER

M. O. writes: Is it true that eating liver encourages cancer?

REPLY

No. The cause of cancer is not known but we might all have the disease if eating liver were responsible.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

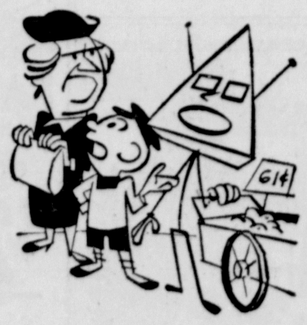
Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

One of those space travelers with a triangular head, square eyes, and ears made of piano wire landed on Delancey Street in New York and scared a push-cart peddler into fainting on the spot. The traveler thought the least he could do was tend the cart until the peddler recovered.

A youngster, passing by with his mother, gulped hard, and said, "Mom, isn't that the craziest looking vegetable peddler you ever did see?"

The mother admitted grimly, "He may look crazy, but you'll notice he's getting 61 cents a pound for his potatoes!"



A grass-roots Democrat was engaged in a heated discussion with his opposite number on the Republican side, while friends egged them on to keep the pot boiling. Proclaimed the Democrat, "There are a thousand ways to make money in politics, but only one honest way." "And what's that?" jeered the Republican. "Ho, ho!" beamed the Democrat. "I was sure you wouldn't know."

Students Stage Yule Program At Keyser PTA

Attendance Sets All-Time Record

KEYSER — A program which was termed "outstanding" by many attracted a record crowd to the Keyser High School auditorium for the December meeting of the local Parent-Teachers Association.

Rev. Robert D Cook, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, gave the devotions after which the Fourth Grade Chorus presented three selections: "Old Man Winter's On His Way," "I Believe in Santa Claus," and "Why Not Make It All the Time." Soloists were Carol Athey, Candy Robinson, and Brad Neville.

A group of boys including Michael Ryan, Brad and Mark Neville, and Ernest Donahue presented pantomine routines to "The Chipmunk Song," "Santa Claus is Coming To Town," and "All I Want for Christmas is My Two Front Teeth."

The Fifth Grade Chorus presented two selections: "I'm Getting Nuttin' for Christmas" and "The First Noel" after which Darlene Moore gave a reading "Why We Sing Christmas Carols." James Courrier played "Silent Night" on the new chord organ, after which several other traditional carols were presented.

The Sixth grade presented a play entitled "An S.O.S. for Santa Claus." Appearing in the cast were Daniel Mosser, Charlene Turner, Jill Lee, Joy Fertig, Mary Herndon, Paul Alt, Jamie Dinteman, Donald Heare, Timothy Condron, with Sandy Baker as announcer. Marvin Reel painted the church window that was used throughout the program, which was under the direction of Mrs. Robert D. Chapman, of the elementary school faculty.

The Seventh Grade Chorus, numbering 65 students under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Church, sang "Caroling, Caroling;" "The Little Drummer Boy" with John Glass as soloist; and an old German carol, "Ring the Bells on Christmas Eve."

Miss Marcella Ryan, a member of the senior class, was in charge of the child care committee which supplied baby-sitters for parents attending the program.

Classes are held the second full week of each month. All students are given individual help and instructions and are provided opportunities to work with live animals and warm carcasses under the supervision of instructors who have had many years experience and training with cattle.

The school's permanent headquarters in Garnett is completely equipped to make full use of both scientific and practical demonstrations, and students are transported by the school's bus to the near-by Graham Farm and Ranch for the actual working experience with live cattle.

W.Va. Firm Gets U.S. Navy Contract To Build Ships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy awarded a $5.44 million contract Wednesday to a Pt. Pleasant, W. Va., firm for construction of two research ships.

Announcement of the contract was made jointly by Sens. Jennings Randolph and Robert C. Byrd and Rep. Ken Hechler, all D-W. Va.

The contract went to Marietta Manufacturing Co. and will mean employment of 500-600 additional men, the company said.

The West Virginia firm was low bidder among four firms which submitted quotations to the Navy Bureau of Ships. The Navy said bid invitations were sent to 17 firms.

Marietta Manufacturing is presently engaged in building two survey ships for the U. S. Coast & Geodetic Survey under contract totaling almost $4 million.

R. B. Rothgeb, assistant to the president of the firm, said two research ships will be 208 feet long with 1,350 tons' displacement.

He said it would take about 22 months to construct the first ship and about two years for the second vessel.

Rothgeb said that, all told, construction of the four vessels means employment for about 900 persons in the Pt. Pleasant area.

Fire Destroys Restaurant In Pendleton Co.

Fire of undetermined origin early today destroyed Hartman's Restaurant on Routes 220 and 33 in Franklin, Pendleton County, W. Va., causing damage estimated at more than $100,000.

Transformers and other equipment owned by the Monongahela Power Company were lost in the stubborn blaze. The apparatus had been stored in the basement of the building.

An unidentified passing motorist noticed the fire at 2:30 a m. and sounded the alarm. Volunteers of the Franklin Fire Company reached the scene less than a half-hour later with two pumpers.

A spokesman said flames were first seen near a cash register inside the entrance door. The establishment was open for business yesterday and closed about midnight.

Nearby gasoline pumps and tanks, a garage, parts room and vacant tavern were spared by the flames. A motel 200 yards north of the restaurant also escaped damage.

Operators of the business, including the motel and garage, are Elmer Hartman and his son, Eugene. They said the loss was partially covered by insurance.

SFIC Head Says Sybert Upheld Fund's Legality

BALTIMORE (AP)—The president and board chairman of Security Financial Insurance Corp. said Monday former Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert had approved the legality of the company's special trust fund.

David F. Woods, president of the firm, said Sybert, now a judge on the Maryland Court of Appeals, made the ruling in behalf of F. Douglass Sears, state insurance commissioner.

Woods' statement came after Albert W. Ward, administrator of Maryland's new savings and loan regulatory law, ordered nine associations to withdraw their investments in SFIC.

Sears said he did not know whether Sybert had approved the trust fund agreement.

"I was extremely surprised to read in the papers that Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan has questioned the legality of the trust fund agreement between Security Financial Insurance Corp. and certain insured clients," Woods said.

"In fact, and as evidenced by the record, the trust agreement which Mr. Finan now determines illegal was formally approved by the pervious Atty. gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert . . . "

Ward, who also is director of assessments and taxation for Maryland, issued the order after Finan ruled the so-called trust fund was improper.

KEYSER — A program which was termed "outstanding" by many attracted a record crowd to the Keyser High School auditorium for the December meeting of the local Parent-Teachers Association.

Rev. Robert D Cook, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, gave the devotions after which the Fourth Grade Chorus presented three selections: "Old Man Winter's On His Way," "I Believe in Santa Claus," and "Why Not Make It All the Time." Soloists were Carol Athey, Candy Robinson, and Brad Neville.

A group of boys including Michael Ryan, Brad and Mark Neville, and Ernest Donahue presented pantomine routines to "The Chipmunk Song," "Santa Claus is Coming To Town," and "All I Want for Christmas is My Two Front Teeth."

The Fifth Grade Chorus presented two selections: "I'm Getting Nuttin' for Christmas" and "The First Noel" after which Darlene Moore gave a reading "Why We Sing Christmas Carols." James Courrier played "Silent Night" on the new chord organ, after which several other traditional carols were presented.

The Sixth grade presented a play entitled "An S.O.S. for Santa Claus." Appearing in the cast were Daniel Mosser, Charlene Turner, Jill Lee, Joy Fertig, Mary Herndon, Paul Alt, Jamie Dinteman, Donald Heare, Timothy Condron, with Sandy Baker as announcer. Marvin Reel painted the church window that was used throughout the program, which was under the direction of Mrs. Robert D. Chapman, of the elementary school faculty.

The Graham School was founded in 1909 by Frank B. Graham, master breeder, and has attained world-wide recognition as a school for the training of herdsmen and breeders by visual demonstrations and actual "on the farm" methods of instruction.

Classes are held the second full week of each month. All students are given individual help and instructions and are provided opportunities to work with live animals and warm carcasses under the supervision of instructors who have had many years experience and training with cattle.

The school's permanent headquarters in Garnett is completely equipped to make full use of both scientific and practical demonstrations, and students are transported by the school's bus to the near-by Graham Farm and Ranch for the actual working experience with live cattle.

Since cattlemen come from all parts of the United States, as well as from other countries, Mr. Robison will have many opportunities for an exchange of ideas relating to all phases of the cattle business.

SFIC Head Says Sybert Upheld Fund's Legality

BALTIMORE (AP)—The president and board chairman of Security Financial Insurance Corp. said Monday former Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert had approved the legality of the company's special trust fund.

David F. Woods, president of the firm, said Sybert, now a judge on the Maryland Court of Appeals, made the ruling in behalf of F. Douglass Sears, state insurance commissioner.

Woods' statement came after Albert W. Ward, administrator of Maryland's new savings and loan regulatory law, ordered nine associations to withdraw their investments in SFIC.

Sears said he did not know whether Sybert had approved the trust fund agreement.

"I was extremely surprised to read in the papers that Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan has questioned the legality of the trust fund agreement between Security Financial Insurance Corp. and certain insured clients," Woods said.

"In fact, and as evidenced by the record, the trust agreement which Mr. Finan now determines illegal was formally approved by the pervious Atty. gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert . . . "

Ward, who also is director of assessments and taxation for Maryland, issued the order after Finan ruled the so-called trust fund was improper.

W. Va. Survey On Shelters Is Contracted

Area Counties Are Included

KEYSER — Contracts for a major portion of West Virginia's phase of the National Shelter Survey have been awarded to three state firms, according to an announcement by Governor W. W. Barron.

The survey, ordered earlier this year by President John F. Kennedy, is expected to identify enough existing shelter areas to protect at least 25 per cent of the nation's population in event of nuclear attacks.

Included in the contracts awarded by the Huntington District Office of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers are 34 West Virginia counties.

Michael Baker Jr., Inc., of Charleston, has been assigned a 16-county area, which in addition to Mineral, includes: Jackson, Clay, Nicholas, Braxton, Roane, Calhoun, Randolph, Pendleton, Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, Morgan, Berkeley, Jefferson, and Webster counties.

Kanawha, Putnam, Boone, Fayette, Mason, and Lincoln counties will be surveyed by Irving Bowman and Associates of Charleston.

A Wheeling firm, Alden E. Stilson and Associates, Ltd. have been granted the counties of Cabell, Wayne, Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, Pleasants, Tyler, Wetzel, Preston, Tucker, and Monongalia in their survey contract.

The initial phase of the survey, that of identifying and marking areas which offer adequate radiation protection without additional modification, is scheduled for completion by February 28 in all but five of the counties listed. The oounties of Preston, Tucker, Wetzel, Pleasants and Tyler will be completed a month later.

State Civil Defense Director William J. Matthews Jr. said additional contracts will be awarded soon for the remainder of the West Virginia counties.

Brownie Is Rescued From Abandoned Mine By Loyalty, Bulldozer, Preacher

GILBERT, W. Va. (UPI) — Brownie, the mongrel hound trapped in an abandoned coal mine for over seven weeks, made it to the outside world Monday with the aid of a preacher who drives a bulldozer.

Brownie fell into a crevice on a mountainside Oct. 28 while chasing a rabbit.

Richard Hatfield, the dog's owner, thought Brownie had died. However, 18 days later a friend of Hatfield's heard the dog's weak yelps from inside the mine. Hatfield had thought the dog had either died or run away.

But he got out Monday. The Rev. Marshall Harless, pastor of the Spratsville Baptist Church near here, knocked aside some rocks and trees and punched a hole in the side of the mine, near where the dog fell in.

One of the rescuers crawled in the hole and called for the dog, and Brownie came out.

Russell Adams, of Gilbert, who had been helping in the rescue attempt said the dog "was a little thin but otherwise seemed OK."

Once found, Brownie was kept alive by scraps of food dropped through the hole. He had plenty of water in the worked out mine.

Hatfield started to work with a pick and shovel to dig his way into the section of the mine where the hound was trapped, a slow, backbreaking job.

Bulldozers were brought to the scene last Saturday and had been attempting to get the dog out ever since.

When Brownie came out of the mine., Hatfield picked him up and carried him home.

B&O Railroad Officials Expressing Concern Over Proposed Coal Pipeline

KEYSER—Local officials of the Baltimore and Ohio have expressed concern over the fact that the West Virginia State Legislature will probably be asked during the upcoming short (30-day) budget session to act upon a bill which would grant the right of eminent domain, under which private property could be condemned and acquired to provide a right-of-way for a coal pipeline.

Spokesman maintain that few facts are available which may be presented so that members of the Legislature, convening January 10, can act on the issue in the best interests of every citizen of West Virginia.

The B&O maintains that at the moment, the most significant fact is that time is needed to assemble the data essential to a deliberate and through consideration of the effects of a coal pipeline on the whole economy of the state. Such a study, they say, is impossible under the timetable which has put the coal pipeline bill on the calandar of the approaching legislative session.

Even if such a study were available now, it could hardly hope to receive the analysis necessary to consideration of such a complex and vital issue during a 30-day session, most of which must be devoted to state budget matters, the B&O said.

L. W. Brown, Division Freight Agent, for the B&O, Cumberland, said the primary consideration is the effect such a step will have on every citizen, taxpayer, and industry in the entire mountain state.

Although the exact route of the proposed pipeline has yet to be disclosed, it is anticipated that it will run approximately 50 miles from a point in the northeastern segment of the state before crossing the state line and taking off on a route aimed at the New Jersey-New York area.

Railroads are now one of the largest groups of taxpayers in West Virginia, having paid a total of $11,631,191 to the state in 1960. The B&O maintains that every individual and corporate taxpayer is entitled to a comprehensive analysis of the effects the pipeline would have on this vital source of tax revenue.

One of the more important natural resources of West Virginia is its supply of water. Many of the industries already in the state, and others planning to locate in West Virginia, have been influenced by the water supply. The Railroad says that the slurry which would be carried through a pipeline consists of approximately 60 per cent coal and 40 per cent water. This water would pour out of the state in prodigious quantities, never to be recovered.

The B&O points out that the right of eminent domain is an instrument of democratic government which must never be used except in the general public interest. The Legislature is faced with the awesome responsibility of determining whether the general welfare of all the citizens of the state will be best served by granting the developers of a pipeline the right of eminent domain so that they might condemn and acquire private property for a right-of-way.

It claims that the programs for industrial development which have been carried on by firms already operating in West Virginia have made such important contributions that the most definitive studies of the effects of a coal pipeline on these programs are demanded by every standard of logic and reason.

The railroad industry alone, Brown said, has during the past five years, helped bring to West Virginia 238 factories, processors, and distributors who have made a total capital investment of more than half a billion dollars and are providing new jobs for 7,500 people, with a total payroll of more than $90 million.

These new jobs in basic industry have, in turn, created an estimated 13,000 jobs in retailing and other services. In addition to the important diversification represented through the growing chemical industry in West Virginia, the railroads have continued to contribute to the expansion of a coal industry through the opening of such new areas as the Gauley field.

The B&O says that facts not known about the coal pipeline indicate it will be limited to transmission of only the special type coal used in generation of electrical power. It is evident that the most probing examination must be given the probable effects of this specialized facility on the existing transportation network which serves all the producers and all the consumers of West Virginia.

Officials say a long, hard look must be taken at the likely effects on the production and transportation of the high-grade metallurgical coal which West Virginia is now able to ship to markets throughout the world. The same examination, they say, is in order for all other goods and commodities either shipped or received by West Virginia.

355 Fatals Recorded

W. Va. Survey On Shelters Is Contracted

Area Counties Are Included

KEYSER — Contracts for a major portion of West Virginia's phase of the National Shelter Survey have been awarded to three state firms, according to an announcement by Governor W. W. Barron.

The survey, ordered earlier this year by President John F. Kennedy, is expected to identify enough existing shelter areas to protect at least 25 per cent of the nation's population in event of nuclear attacks.

Included in the contracts awarded by the Huntington District Office of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers are 34 West Virginia counties.

Michael Baker Jr., Inc., of Charleston, has been assigned a 16-county area, which in addition to Mineral, includes: Jackson, Clay, Nicholas, Braxton, Roane, Calhoun, Randolph, Pendleton, Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, Morgan, Berkeley, Jefferson, and Webster counties.

Kanawha, Putnam, Boone, Fayette, Mason, and Lincoln counties will be surveyed by Irving Bowman and Associates of Charleston.

A Wheeling firm, Alden E. Stilson and Associates, Ltd. have been granted the counties of Cabell, Wayne, Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, Pleasants, Tyler, Wetzel, Preston, Tucker, and Monongalia in their survey contract.

The initial phase of the survey, that of identifying and marking areas which offer adequate radiation protection without additional modification, is scheduled for completion by February 28 in all but five of the counties listed. The counties of Preston, Tucker, Wetzel, Pleasants and Tyler will be completed a month later.

State Civil Defense Director William J. Matthews Jr. said additional contracts will be awarded soon for the remainder of the West Virginia counties.

Brownie Is Rescued From Abandoned Mine By Loyalty, Bulldozer, Preacher

GILBERT, W. Va. (UPI) — Brownie, the mongrel hound trapped in an abandoned coal mine for over seven weeks, made it to the outside world Monday with the aid of a preacher who drives a bulldozer.

Brownie fell into a crevice on a mountainside Oct. 28 while chasing a rabbit.

Richard Hatfield, the dog's owner, thought Brownie had died. However, 18 days later a friend of Hatfield's heard the dog's weak yelps from inside the mine. Hatfield had thought the dog had either died or run away.

But he got out Monday. The Rev. Marshall Harless, pastor of the Spratsville Baptist Church near here, knocked aside some rocks and trees and punched a hole in the side of the mine, near where the dog fell in.

One of the rescuers crawled in the hole and called for the dog, and Brownie came out.

Russell Adams, of Gilbert, who had been helping in the rescue attempt said the dog "was a little thin but otherwise seemed OK."

Once found, Brownie was kept alive by scraps of food dropped through the hole. He had plenty of water in the worked out mine.

Hatfield started to work with a pick and shovel to dig his way into the section of the mine where the hound was trapped, a slow, backbreaking job.

Bulldozers were brought to the scene last Saturday and had been attempting to get the dog out ever since.

When Brownie came out of the mine, Hatfield picked him up and carried him home.

B&O Railroad Officials Expressing Concern Over Proposed Coal Pipeline

KEYSER—Local officials of the Baltimore and Ohio have expressed concern over the fact that the West Virginia State Legislature will probably be asked during the upcoming short (30-day) budget session to act upon a bill which would grant the right of eminent domain, under which private property could be condemned and acquired to provide a right-of-way for a coal pipeline.

Spokesman maintain that few facts are available which may be presented so that members of the Legislature, convening January 10, can act on the issue in the best interests of every citizen of West Virginia.

The B&O maintains that at the moment, the most significant fact is that time is needed to assemble the data essential to a deliberate and through consideration of the effects of a coal pipeline on the whole economy of the state. Such a study, they say, is impossible under the timetable which has put the coal pipeline bill on the calandar of the approaching legislative session.

Even if such a study were available now, it could hardly hope to receive the analysis necessary to consideration of such a complex and vital issue during a 30-day session, most of which must be devoted to state budget matters, the B&O said.

L. W. Brown, Division Freight Agent, for the B&O, Cumberland, said the primary consideration is the effect such a step will have on every citizen, taxpayer, and industry in the entire mountain state.

Although the exact route of the proposed pipeline has yet to be disclosed, it is anticipated that it will run approximately 50 miles from a point in the northeastern segment of the state before crossing the state line and taking off on a route aimed at the New Jersey-New York area.

Railroads are now one of the largest groups of taxpayers in West Virginia, having paid a total of $11,631,191 to the state in 1960. The B&O maintains that every individual and corporate taxpayer is entitled to a comprehensive analysis of the effects the pipeline would have on this vital source of tax revenue.

One of the more important natural resources of West Virginia is its supply of water. Many of the industries already in the state, and others planning to locate in West Virginia, have been influenced by the water supply. The Railroad says that the slurry which would be carried through a pipeline consists of approximately 60 per cent coal and 40 per cent water. This water would pour out of the state in prodigious quantities, never to be recovered.

The B&O points out that the right of eminent domain is an instrument of democratic government which must never be used except in the general public interest. The Legislature is faced with the awesome responsibility of determining whether the general welfare of all the citizens of the state will be best served by granting the developers of a pipeline the right of eminent domain so that they might condemn and acquire private property for a right-of-way.

It claims that the programs for industrial development which have been carried on by firms already operating in West Virginia have made such important contributions that the most definitive studies of the effects of a coal pipeline on these programs are demanded by every standard of logic and reason.

The railroad industry alone, Brown said, has during the past five years, helped bring to West Virginia 238 factories, processors, and distributors who have made a total capital investment of more than half a billion dollars and are providing new jobs for 7,500 people, with a total payroll of more than $90 million.

These new jobs in basic industry have, in turn, created an estimated 13,000 jobs in retailing and other services. In addition to the important diversification represented through the growing chemical industry in West Virginia, the railroads have continued to contribute to the expansion of a coal industry through the opening of such new areas as the Gauley field.

The B&O says that facts not known about the coal pipeline indicate it will be limited to transmission of only the special type coal used in generation of electrical power. It is evident that the most probing examination must be given the probable effects of this specialized facility on the existing transportation network which serves all the producers and all the consumers of West Virginia.

Officials say a long, hard look must be taken at the likely effects on the production and transportation of the high-grade metallurgical coal which West Virginia is now able to ship to markets throughout the world. The same examination, they say, is in order for all other goods and commodities either shipped or received by West Virginia.

355 Fatals Recorded

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— Six persons died in traffic accidents in West Virginia over the weekend to boost the state's traffic death toll for the year to 355.

ARTIST THOMAS NAST

The big, hearty Santa Claus everyone knows today was the creation of an American artist named Thomas Nast nearly a century ago.

Nast apparently didn't like the artists' versions of Santa of his day. There was one showing old Nick as a shrunken elf smoking a wee Dutch pipe which appeared in this country in 1844; there were others which pictured him as tubby dwarfs or hunchbacks. So Nast went to work and created a Santa which the children, even the elders, would love, a symbol of a happy season.

Nast's first two Santas appeared in 1863. One showed the old saint visiting Civil War soldiers. The other showed him on a chimney.

Even though Nast was better known as a political cartoonist, shooting his ink-dipped barbs at the bigwigs of his day, he still found time to draw his beloved Santa for the dozens of woodcuts that started appearing in the magazines of the 1860s.

Here are some of Nast's drawings of St. Nick. These originally appeared in Harper's Weekly between 1866 and 1886. Together with many more they were collected in a book titled "Christmas Drawings for the Human Race", which appeared in 1890.

Martinsburg Visits Fort Hill, LaSalle Entertains Valley Tonight

Chet Payne's Campers Play At Piedmont

Beall At Keyser To Head 6-Game Program In PVC

Cumberland's three senior high school quints will see action in games scheduled for tonight.

In the big one here, Fort Hill's Sentinels will test the Martinsburg High School Bulldogs, who have whipped Waynesboro, 72-55, and Allegany, 66-54, while the LaSalle Explorers, unbeaten in three outings, will play host to the Valley High School Black Knights.

Coach Chet Payne's Campers journey to Piedmont tonight to tackle Coach William "Huck" Miers' Lions, who have won their last four games after dropping the season opener.

Upset Bulldogs Here

It was on the Fort Hill court last February that Coach Jim Eckard's Sentinels cracked Martinsburg's 14-game winning streak, 85-79, after having dropped the series opener to the Bulldogs, 66-51. That was one of two games lost by Martinsburg in 23 starts, the other coming at the hands of Huntington in the West Virginia Class AAA tourney at Huntington, 102-45.

Fort Hill kicked off the lid last week with a 67-45 decision over Fort Ashby.

Roy Comer, former Ridgeley High School athlete, is the head coach of the Bulldogs, having succeeded Coach George Whitacre, who tutored Martinsburg teams for seven years.

LaSalle has turned back Fort Ashby, 71-64, Beall, 59-44, and Mt. Savage, 73-62. The Explorers are 2-0 in the P.V.C. and 2-0 against opposition from the W.M.I. League. Beall is also a member of the P.V.C. Last season LaSalle copped 7 of 10 engagements with W.M.I. League quints.

Valley comes to SS. Peter & Paul gym with a 1-3 record, having beaten Southern of Oakland and lost to Piedmont twice and Keyser once.

Play 17th of Series

LaSalle and Valley will be tangling for the 17th time since 1954, with the Explorers holding a 9-7 edge in the series. LaSalle has won six of eight games here and lost five of eight contests at Lonaconing.

Allegany plays Piedmont only once this season. Last year in the game played here the Campers posted a 56-46 victory.

The Campers' lone outing has been against Martinsburg while Piedmont has five games under its belt. The Lions dropped a 35-33 decision in overtime to Elk Garden then downed Valley 55-49 and 38-26, Beall 59-49 at Frostburg and Petersburg 52-34.

A half dozen Potomac Valley Conference games appear on tonight's program.

Beall Visits Keyser

Unbeaten Keyser High School hosts Beall High Mountaineers in a game in which Coach "Eck" Miers' Golden Tornado will be gunning for win No. 5. The Mineral countians are 2-0 in the conference. Beall, the 1960-61 P.V.C. winner, suffered its only loss in ten league starts at the hands of Keyser in two overtimes, 58-56. The current Beall quint is 1-3 in the conference.

In other conference action tonight, Paw Paw visits Romney High, Fort Ashby is at Capon Bridge, Circleville at Moorefield, Franklin at Petersburg and West Virginia School for the Deaf at Wardensville.

Mt. Savage plays at Oldtown, Northern High's Huskies will be seeking a sweep of the series when it entertains Salisbury (Pa.) High in a return game and Hyndman's Hornets will attempt to square the series when it visits Meyersdale.

Birds To Move Fences Closer

Will Give Batters Fairer Play Field

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles said Monday night the distances from home plate to the fences in Memorial Stadium will be shortened next season.

Lee MacPhail, president-general manager, said, "We feel that the fences are too long at two sectors—deep left and deep right—and that our move will provide the batters with a fairer field in which to play."

Since 1959, the distances to the fences have been 380 feet in deep left, 390 feet in left-center, 410 feet in center, 390 feet in right-center and 380 feet in deep right and 309 fet down the foul lines.

When the Orioles returned to the major leagues in 1954, the deepest point was 450 feet and 447 feet in the power zones of left and right center. In 1957, the dimensions were cut to 425 feet in center and 410 feet in the power zones.

MacPhail's present plans call for shortening the 380-feet distances in left and right center to about 370.

"There still will not be any cheap home runs hit over our fences," MacPhail said. "It will continue to be 410 in center and 309 down the foul lines, but the manner in which the fences fall away so fast from the lines eliminates the possibility of a cheap homer. And even right at the 309 marks, the hitter has to clear a 14-foot wall."

Zerbey To Pilot Charleston Team In Eastern Loop

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Dan Zerbey, manager of Charleston's new Class A baseball team, is scheduled to arrive Tuesday to inspect facilities at Watt Powell Park and begin setting up operations.

The Cleveland Indians have decided to transfer their Eastern League franchise from Reading, Pa., to Charleston. Indian General Manager Gabe Paul said, "I'm not worried about Charleston succeeding in Class A ball if we do our part."

Paul added: "If we have a good ball club and do a good job in the front office, I'm not worried about our support. If we don't do a good job, we can't expect much support."

The Indians will rent Watt Powell Park for $1-a-year, same token price paid by Charleston's now-departed International League club. The Marlins moved to Atlanta, Ga.

"I'd say Charleston can be a big success in Class A but the strain for your population is just too great in higher leagues," Paul said.

The new cage coach at North Carolina, Dean Smith, teaches a Sunday Bible class, has a grandfather who was a Baptist preacher and a brother-in-law who is a Congregational minister.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The West Virginia Racing Commission said Monday it had approved an April 13-May 19 meeting at Shenandoah Downs at Charles Town.

The permit for the Charles Town Racing Association, Inc., will be for 31 days of racing during the period, with no program scheduled on April 20 which is Good Friday.

The dates are the second to be granted West Virginia racing plants for 1962. The commission earlier granted Charles Town Properties, Inc., a Jan. 1-Feb. 8 meeting at the old Charles Town track as a continuation of a winter meeting which began last Friday.

Arizona State Loses Its First Game To Indiana Five, 94-88

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana's sharpshooting Jimmy Rayl and driving Tom Bolyard blasted Arizona State's Sun Devils out of the nation's ranks of undefeated college basketball teams Monday night, 94-88.

Rayl scored 14 points and Bolyard 10 in a five-minute Hooser spree that smashed a five-game Arizona State winning string after the Sun Devils had led 49-39 at the half. Arizona State was tied with Seattle for No. 10 national ranking. Indiana was unranked.

Rayl wound up with 25 points.

Buckeyes Carry AP Cage Poll By Big Margin

Capture 39 Of 40 Votes: W. Virginia Is Rated Fifth

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, heavy choice in the Associated Press pre-season college basketball poll to capture the national championship, made a runaway of the first weekly poll by eight district boards.

The Buckeyes, undefeated last year but upset by the Cincinnati Bearcats in the NCAA tournament finals at Kansas City, received 39 of the 40 first place votes in the nationwide AP poll tallied Monday.

Cincinnati, also undefeated to date this season and matching Ohio State's early 5 - 0 record, amassed a heavy second place vote and ranked second with 301 points. With one first place vote going to Cincinnati, Ohio State was rated second in one ballot. The Bearcats had been ranked second in the pre-season poll.

Balloting was on the basis of 10 points for a first place vote, nine for second, and so on, for games through last Saturday. Ohio State thumped Chicago Loyola 92-72 Saturday while Cincinnati ran up its 27th consecutive victory by clobbering Marshall 77-49.

Providence, winner of the National Invitation Tournament over St. Louis last March, was ranked No. 3 after being placed in the fifth spot in the pre-season poll. Kansas State, at 5-0 along with the other top three teams, is No. 4, a jump from eighth place in the pre-season calculations.

Three teams ranked in the top 10 in the early considerations fell by the wayside in the first weekly poll—Wake Forest (No.3), Duke (No.7), and St. John's of New York (No.9). West Virginia, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure joined the select top company, along with Arizona State which tied Seattle for tenth rating. All of the newcomers were unbeaten through last Saturday night's games.

Duquesne bounced Duke from the unbeaten list in the Steel Bowl Tournament, Kansas State handed St. John's its first loss, while Maryland handed Wake Forest its third defeat of the season.

The top 10 teams based on games through Saturday, Dec. 16, with first place votes in parenthesis is:

1.	Ohio State (39)	399
2.	Cincinnati (1)	301
3.	Providence	232
4.	Kansas State	208
5.	West Virginia	129
6.	Southern California	105
7.	Duquesne	97
8.	Purdue	82
9.	St. Bonaventure	68
10.	Seattle-Ariz. St. (tie)	57

Clyde Turner Replaces Baugh As Titan's Coach

Signs 2-Year Pact, Sammy Will Remain As Team Consultant

By JOE SARGIS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, an all-pro center with the Chicago Bears in the 1940's, Monday was named head coach of the New York Titans of the American Football League, replacing Sammy Baugh.

Titan owner Harry Wismer, in announcing Turner's signing for two years at $28,000 per year, said that Baugh would remain with the club for the 1962 season as "a consultant."

Feuded With Wismer

Baugh, who feuded bitterly with Wismer during most of the recently completed season, had one year to go on a three-year contract, also calling for $28,000 per season.

In signing the 42-year-old Turner, Wismer said that the former Bear star "will be a full-time coach beginning Feb. 1 when he will move here to take over operation of the club with general manager Steve Sebo."

The reference to "full-time" was a slap at Baugh, whom Wismer criticized for an apparent lack of interest once the season was over.

Turner, who said that he had not seen any American Football League games except for last year's title game between the Houston Oilers and San Diego Chargers, indicated a desire to work closely with Baugh.

"I'm not here to criticize what Sammy did," Turner said. "I hope he will decide to stay with us and work with me. He'll be here in a few days and we'll talk it over."

Steber Resigns

Wismer revealed that assistant coach John Steber has turned in his resignation but indicated that Bones Taylor and John Dell Isola would be retained, "if Bulldog wants them."

Turner said he had the highest regard for both men and would be happy to have them work with him. Other coaches will be named as needed.

Turner has been out of pro football since he gave up a job as an assistant coach under Bears' coach George Halas in 1958.

Martinsburg Visits Fort Hill, LaSalle Entertains Valley Tonight

Beall At Keyser To Head 6-Game Program In PVC

Cumberland's three senior high school quints will see action in games scheduled for tonight.

In the big one here, Fort Hill's Sentinels will test the Martinsburg High School Bulldogs, who have whipped Waynesboro, 72-55, and Allegany, 66-54, while the LaSalle Explorers, unbeaten in three outings, will play host to the Valley High School Black Knights.

Coach Chet Payne's Campers journey to Piedmont tonight to tackle Coach William "Huck" Miers' Lions, who have won their last four games after dropping the season opener.

Upset Bulldogs Here

It was on the Fort Hill court last February that Coach Jim Eckard's Sentinels cracked Martinsburg's 14-game winning streak, 85-79, after having dropped the series opener to the Bulldogs, 66-51. That was one of two games lost by Martinsburg in 23 starts, the other coming at the hands of Huntington in the West Virginia Class AAA tourney at Huntington, 102-45.

Fort Hill kicked off the lid last week with a 67-45 decision over Fort Ashby.

Roy Comer, former Ridgeley High School athlete, is the head coach of the Bulldogs, having succeeded Coach George Whitacre, who tutored Martinsburg teams for seven years.

LaSalle has turned back Fort Ashby, 71-64, Beall, 59-44, and Mt. Savage, 73-62. The Explorers are 2-0 in the P.V.C. and 2-0 against opposition from the W.M.I. League. Beall is also a member of the P.V.C. Last season LaSalle copped 7 of 10 engagements with W.M.I. League quints.

Valley comes to SS. Peter & Paul gym with a 1-3 record, having beaten Southern of Oakland and lost to Piedmont twice and Keyser once.

Play 17th of Series

LaSalle and Valley will be tangling for the 17th time since 1954, with the Explorers holding a 9-7 edge in the series. LaSalle has won six of eight games here and lost five of eight contests at Lonaconing.

Allegany plays Piedmont only once this season. Last year in the game played here the Campers posted a 56-46 victory.

The Campers' lone outing has been against Martinsburg while Piedmont has five games under its belt. The Lions dropped a 35-33 decision in overtime to Elk Garden then downed Valley 55-49 and 38-26, Beall 59-49 at Frostburg and Petersburg 52-34.

A half dozen Potomac Valley Conference games appear on tonight's program.

Beall Visits Keyser

Unbeaten Keyser High School hosts Beall High Mountaineers in a game in which Coach "Eck" Miers' Golden Tornado will be gunning for win No. 5. The Mineral countians are 2-0 in the conference. Beall, the 1960-61 P.V.C. winner, suffered its only loss in ten league starts at the hands of Keyser in two overtimes, 58-56. The current Beall quint is 1-3 in the conference.

In other conference action tonight, Paw Paw visits Romney High, Fort Ashby is at Capon Bridge, Circleville at Moorefield, Franklin at Petersburg and West Virginia School for the Deaf at Wardensville.

Mt. Savage plays at Oldtown, Northern High's Huskies will be seeking a sweep of the series when it entertains Salisbury (Pa.) High in a return game and Hyndman's Hornets will attempt to square the series when it visits Meyersdale.

Other Games Listed

At Hagerstown, North High's Hubs do battle with the Westminster Owls and Waynesboro tackles South Hagerstown's Rebels. Coach "Shad" Hunt's St. Maria Goretti High cagers of Hagerstown visit Hancock, Homer Brooks' Frederick High Cadets will go after win No. 3 when they invade North Carroll and the Bedford Bisons tackle Cresson High on the latter's court in other games on tap for tonight.

Zerbey To Pilot Charleston Team In Eastern Loop

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Dan Zerbey, manager of Charleston's new Class A baseball team, is scheduled to arrive Tuesday to inspect facilities at Watt Powell Park and begin setting up operations.

The Cleveland Indians have decided to transfer their Eastern League franchise from Reading, Pa., to Charleston. Indian General Manager Gabe Paul said, "I'm not worried about Charleston succeeding in Class A ball if we do our part."

Paul added: "If we have a good ball club and do a good job in the front office, I'm not worried about our support. If we don't do a good job, we can't expect much support."

The Indians will rent Watt Powell Park for $1-a-year, same token price paid by Charleston's now-departed International League club. The Marlins moved to Atlanta, Ga.

"I'd say Charleston can be a big success in Class A but the strain for your population is just too great in higher leagues," Paul said.

The new cage coach at North Carolina, Dean Smith, teaches a Sunday Bible class, has a grandfather who was a Baptist preacher and a brother-in-law who is a Congregational minister.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The West Virginia Racing Commission said Monday it had approved an April 13-May 19 meeting at Shenandoah Downs at Charles Town.

The permit for the Charles Town Racing Association, Inc., will be for 31 days of racing during the period, with no program scheduled on April 20 which is Good Friday.

The dates are the second to be granted West Virginia racing plants for 1962. The commission earlier granted Charles Town Properties, Inc., a Jan. 1-Feb. 8 meeting at the old Charles Town track as a continuation of a winter meeting which began last Friday.

Arizona State Loses Its First Game To Indiana Five, 94-88

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana's sharpshooting Jimmy Rayl and driving Tom Bolyard blasted Arizona State's Sun Devils out of the nation's ranks of undefeated college basketball teams Monday night, 94-88.

Rayl scored 14 points and Bolyard 10 in a five-minute Hooser spree that smashed a five-game Arizona State winning string after the Sun Devils had led 49-39 at the half. Arizona State was tied with Seattle for No. 10 national ranking. Indiana was unranked.

Rayl wound up with 25 points.

Buckeyes Carry AP Cage Poll By Big Margin

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, heavy choice in the Associated Press pre-season college basketball poll to capture the national championship, made a runaway of the first weekly poll by eight district boards.

The Buckeyes, undefeated last year but upset by the Cincinnati Bearcats in the NCAA tournament finals at Kansas City, received 39 of the 40 first place votes in the nationwide AP poll tallied Monday.

Cincinnati, also undefeated to date this season and matching Ohio State's early 5 - 0 record, amassed a heavy second place vote and ranked second with 301 points. With one first place vote going to Cincinnati, Ohio State was rated second in one ballot. The Bearcats had been ranked second in the pre-season poll.

Balloting was on the basis of 10 points for a first place vote, nine for second, and so on, for games through last Saturday. Ohio State thumped Chicago Loyola 92-72 Saturday while Cincinnati ran up its 27th consecutive victory by clobbering Marshall 77-49.

Providence, winner of the National Invitation Tournament over St. Louis last March, was ranked No. 3 after being placed in the fifth spot in the pre-season poll. Kansas State, at 5-0 along with the other top three teams, is No. 4, a jump from eighth place in the pre-season calculations.

Three teams ranked in the top 10 in the early considerations fell by the wayside in the first weekly poll—Wake Forest (No.3), Duke (No.7), and St. John's of New York (No.9). West Virginia, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure joined the select top company, along with Arizona State which tied Seattle for tenth rating. All of the newcomers were unbeaten through last Saturday night's games.

Duquesne bounced Duke from the unbeaten list in the Steel Bowl Tournament, Kansas State handed St. John's its first loss, while Maryland handed Wake Forest its third defeat of the season.

The top 10 teams based on games through Saturday, Dec. 16, with first place votes in parenthesis is:

1.	Ohio State (39)	399
2.	Cincinnati (1)	301
3.	Providence	232
4.	Kansas State	208
5.	West Virginia	129
6.	Southern California	105
7.	Duquesne	97
8.	Purdue	82
9.	St. Bonaventure	68

Clyde Turner Replaces Baugh As Titan's Coach

Signs 2-Year Pact, Sammy Will Remain As Team Consultant

By JOE SARGIS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, an all-pro center with the Chicago Bears in the 1940's, Monday was named head coach of the New York Titans of the American Football League, replacing Sammy Baugh.

Titan owner Harry Wismer, in announcing Turner's signing for two years at $28,000 per year, said that Baugh would remain with the club for the 1962 season as "a consultant."

Feuded With Wismer

Baugh, who feuded bitterly with Wismer during most of the recently completed season, had one year to go on a three-year contract, also calling for $28,000 per season.

In signing the 42-year-old Turner, Wismer said that the former Bear star "will be a full-time coach beginning Feb. 1 when he will move here to take over operation of the club with general manager Steve Sebo."

The reference to "full-time" was a slap at Baugh, whom Wismer criticized for an apparent lack of interest once the season was over.

Turner, who said that he had not seen any American Football League games except for last year's title game between the Houston Oilers and San Diego Chargers, indicated a desire to work closely with Baugh.

"I'm not here to criticize what Sammy did," Turner said. "I hope he will decide to stay with us and work with me. He'll be here in a few days and we'll talk it over."

Steber Resigns

Wismer revealed that assistant coach John Steber has turned in his resignation but indicated that Bones Taylor and John Dell Isola would be retained, "if Bulldog wants them."

Turner said he had the highest regard for both men and would be happy to have them work with him. Other coaches will be named as needed.

Turner has been out of pro football since he gave up a job as an assistant coach under Bears' coach George Halas in 1958.

Terps Trounce Virginia, 91-70

Maryland Scores 3rd Straight Win

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) —The University of Maryland won its third straight basketball game Monday night in a 91-70 triumph over its Atlantic Coast Conference rival University of Virginia.

Bob Eicher put the Terrapins ahead six minutes inside the first half with a 13-point scoring spree. After that Maryland kept a comfortable margin of victory.

Virginia closed to nine points of Maryland in the final minutes of the half with a freee throw by Tony Laquintano and three by John Eller.

The Terps grabbed a quick five points opening the second period on free throws by Bruce Kelleher and Jerry Greenspan, and a basket by Joe Barton.

A few minutes later Maryland rushed far ahead of the Cavaliers again with a goal by Kelleher, two charity throws by Greenspan, then three free throws and a basket by Paul Jelus. The Terps led then by 49 to 33.

Chip Conner, with 23 points, was the game's leading scorer.

Wilma Rudolph Named Female Athlete Of Year

Easily Outdistances Misses Wright, Hard

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wilma Rudolph, the tall, willowy girl, who doesn't believe in hurrying unless she's wearing track shoes, easily outdistanced all opposition again in winning The Associated Press' award as the female athlete of the year for 1961.

It was the second straight year Miss Rudolph finished on top in the annual Associated Press year-end poll. In the 1961 voting by 250 sports writers and broadcasters, Wilma was named first on 178 ballots. Mickey Wright, the queen of women's professional golf, was second and Darlene Hard, the U.S. tennis titleholder, was third.

Miss Rudolph collected 592 points on a basis of three points for a first-place vote, two for second and one for third. Miss Wright had 270 points, Miss Hard 175 and bowling star Marion Ladewig, 148.

Miss Rudolph, who won three Olympic gold medals in 1960, set a world record for the 100-meter dash last July 19 when she was clocked in 11.2 seconds in Stuttgart, Germany. This was only one of her fine performances during the European tour by an American track and field team.

Wilma tied her own indoor record of 6.9 seconds for the 60-yard dash in the Millrose meet Feb. 3 and two weeks later shattered the mark with a :06.8 clocking.

In recognition of her feats, Wilma will receive the Frederic C. Miller memorial trophy, given by the Fraternal Order of the Eagles at a dinner in Milwaukee, Jan. 4.

Miss Wright, the 26-year-old one-time psychology major from San Diego, Calif., finished in the money in all 24 golf tournaments in which she competed. She won 10 of them and finished with earnings of $22,236.21. Included among her victories were the National Women's Open, the Women's PGA and the Titleholders championship.

Miss Hard, from Montebello, Calif., shook off an attack of hepatitis and bounced back after a two-month layoff to win the National Singles crown at Forest Hills, N.Y. Behind her strong serve-and-volley game, she crushed Britain's Ann Haydon 6-3, 6-4 in the 47-minute final match.

Hank Foldberg Accepts Terms

Texans Rehire Two Holdover Coaches

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — (UPI) — Hank Foldberg formally agreed to terms Monday as athletic director and head football coach at Texas A&M College and completed his staff by hiring holdover coaches Elmer Smith and Bobby Drake Keith.

The 38-year-old Foldberg, announced Saturday as the successor to ousted Jim Myers, met briefly with his future Aggie gridders for about five minutes and asked them to give 100 percent effort next season "and then give a second effort."

The new coach, who can't formally report here until after he directs his Wichita University team against Villanova in the Sun Bowl Dec. 30, is bringing his four-man Wichita staff here with him, but wanted the holdover coaches to start recruiting.

Smith, who was an aide here under Paul (Bear) Bryant before the latter moved on to Alabama, and Keith, who began his coaching under Myers, left the campus Monday on a recruiting tour.

Foldberg, who coached Wichita to two 8-2 seasons in his only times out as a head coach, said he planned to return here Jan. 3.

Ohio State Cops Sixth In Row

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Top-ranked Ohio State, calm despite St. Louis University's pesky defenses, rolled to its sixth consecutive victory of the basketball season Monday night by beating the Billikens 61-48.

Jerry Lucas with 20 points and John Havlicek with 17 simply had too much of everything for the Bills, who now have a 3-3 record.

Chisox Get Phillips, Sadowski From Phils

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox Monday announced acquisition of southpaw hurler Taylor Phillips and infielder Bob Sadowski from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Phillips, who played with the Chicago Cubs and Milwaukee Braves, and Sadowski came to the Sox as part of the trade which sent veteran infielder Andy Carey to the Phils Friday. Both will be assigned to Indianapolis, but will accompany the Sox to spring training.

The Phillies also obtained right handed pitcher Frank Barnes from Indianapolis and will assign him to Buffalo.

Blue Devils Hand W.V.U. First Defeat

Mullins, Heyman Pace Winners Who Use No Substitutes

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Jeff Mullins and Art Heyman combined for 45 points to lead Duke's "Iron-Five" to a 69-65 win over previously undefeated West Virginia here Monday night.

Mullins picked up 25 points and Heyman 20 as the Blue Devils snapped a six game West Virginia winning streak.

Duke's starting five of Heyman, Mullins, Buzzy Harrison, Buzz Mewhort and Bill Ulrich played the entire game.

The smaller Blue Devils outrebounded West Virginia 60-42 with Mullins collecting 17, Mewhort 16 and Heyman 9. Lowry had 19 for the Mountaineers.

The play of the 6-foot-4 Mewhort was the key to the Duke offense, however, as the senior center did a good job of opening up the lane, enabling Mullins to score several easy goals on drive-in layups.

Jimmy McCormick hit for 23 points to lead West Virginia with Rod Thorn contributing 19 points and Tom Lowry 8 markers.

Mullins Hot Early

Duke, playing a slow deliberate brand of ball, took control of the game at the start and rolled out to an early 10-5 lead with Heyman and Mullins picking up eight of those ten points.

West Virginia came charging back to take the lead at 25-24 on a jump shot by Dick Dubois and again, and for the last time several seconds later, on a layup by McCormick at 27-26. But that was the last time the Mountaineers were in front.

Duke came back strong at the start of the second half and extended the lead to eight points at 45-37 and to eight again at 47-39.

The Mountaineers behind the dead-eye shooting of McCormick who picked up 14 of his points after intermission, came back to tie the game at 48-all.

Press Fails

Duke came alive on a goal by Heyman and a three - point play by Mullins to take a 52-49 edge.

The lead was extended to eight points again late in the game when West Virginia threw the "panic press" at the Blue Devils. WVU cut the margain to two at 63-61 on a layup by Lowry with a little over two minutes remaining in the game.

Packers, Oilers Made Favorites In Title Games

NEW YORK (UPI) — Broadway oddsmakers Monday night installed the Green Bay Packers as three-point favorites over the New York Giants in their National Football League championship game Dec. 31.

The same "wizards of odds" listed the Houston Oilers as 3½-point favorites over the San Diego Chargers for the American Football league championship tilt at San Diego next Sunday.

Blanda, Cannon Capture Offensive Marks in AFL

Cappelletti Sets Scoring Record With 147 Points

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Houston's George Blanda and Billy Cannon, Denver's Lionel Taylor and Boston's Gino Cappelletti won the American Football League's major individual statistical championships and each set a league record en route to the titles.

Blanda, who won the passing title hands down with 53½ efficiency points to 41½ for Oakland's Tom Flores, set new AFL standards of 3,340 yards gained, 36 touchdown passes and 9.23 yards gained per attempt.

Cannon, who came on strong in his last two games to win the rushing crown going away, piled up 948 yards, while defending champ Abner Haynes of Dallas, crippled for several games, finished third with 841 yards. Second place went to New York fullback Billy Mathis, whose 202 rushes also was a new AFL mark. Mathis gained 846 yards.

Taylor, who already held the all-pro record of 92 pass receptions for his inaugural season, boosted that mark to 100.

Cappelletti bested the league scoring record of 123 points set by Gene Mingo of Denver as he combined eight touchdowns, 48 conversions and 17 field goals for 147 points.

Billy Atkins of Buffalo led the circuit in two divisions with 10 interceptions and a 45-yard punting average, the latter being a record. Houston's Charles Hennigan boosted the pass receiving yardage record to 1,746 yards while teammate Bill Groman, who had held the record, posted new marks of 17 touchdown passes and 23.5-yard average gain per pass and also a league record of 18 touchdowns in all.

Dick Christy of New York won the punt return crown with a 21.3-yard average, also a record.

Bearcats' 27-Game Win Streak Ends

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Lanny Van Eman hit a 15-foot jump shot with three seconds left to give the Wichita Shockers a 52-51 basketball victory over Cincinnati Monday night, breaking the Bearcats' 27-game winning streak, longest in current collegiate circles.

Van Eman led the Shockers with 19 points, tying Paul Hogue of Cincinnati for game honors.

Van Eman hit seven field goals in the last eight minutes.

Cincinnati held its biggest lead in the second half, 41-36, with 7:08 to play. Substitute Bill Durham hit a keyhole shot with 13 seconds left to leave Wichita trailing 51-50.

Cincinnati's Larry Singleton fouled on the Bearcats' next possession. Van Eman took the ball out of bounds, passed in to Gene Wiley. He passed back to Van Eman who calmly pitched the ball through the hoop for the victory.

A Fowl Story: Police Nip Plot To Release Chickens During NFL Contest

76 Are Confiscated, Feed Put On Field, Texans Are Blamed

By BOB SERLING
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A full-bloom feud between the Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys threatened to erupt Monday over 76 chickens and 10 pounds of chicken feed.

The quarrel stemmed from an attempt by unidentified Dallas rooters to loose the live chickens on the field during Sunday's halftime show at the new D.C. Stadium. They did manage to spread the feed over the gridiron before the game began, but a police lieutenant spotted the crated chickens under a canvas in a dugout and informed Redskin officials.

Calls Prank Childish

Washington owner George Preston Marshall called the abortive prank "childish and immature." He said he was sending a full report on the incident to National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Included in the report may be an accusation that one or more officials of the Dallas team were involved. The chickens were brought to the stadium by two bellboys from the hotel where several Cowboys' officials were staying. They were standing by the crates when police confiscated the chickens—and both presented field badges that originally had been given to Dallas officials.

The bellboys got by gatekeepers by telling them the chickens were part of the halftime entertainment.

"We are gathering evidence on who thought up this alleged sample of humor," Redskins General Manager Dick McCann said. "We won't name any names now but we're pretty sure at least one Dallas official definitely was involved."

McCann, normally a fast man with the quip himself, was still boiling 24 hours after the unsuccessful chicken invasion.

Dick McCann Fumes

"It wasn't funny and it could have been disastrous," he fumed. "It could have delayed the start of the second half for an hour or more and we even could have wound up forfeiting the game if the referee wanted to get tough. Did you ever see how much trouble they have catching a small dog who runs across a field, how do you think they would have done trying to run down 76 scared birds?"

Maryland Scores 3rd Straight Win

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) —The University of Maryland won its third straight basketball game Monday night in a 91-70 triumph over its Atlantic Coast Conference rival University of Virginia.

Bob Eicher put the Terrapins ahead six minutes inside the first half with a 13-point scoring spree. After that Maryland kept a comfortable margin of victory.

Virginia closed to nine points of Maryland in the final minutes of the half with a freee throw by Tony Laquintano and three by John Eller.

The Terps grabbed a quick five points opening the second period on free throws by Bruce Kelleher and Jerry Greenspan, and a basket by Joe Barton.

A few minutes later Maryland rushed far ahead of the Cavaliers again with a goal by Kelleher, two charity throws by Greenspan, then three free throws and a basket by Paul Jelus. The Terps led then by 49 to 33.

Chip Conner, with 23 points, was the game's leading scorer.

Wilma Rudolph Named Female Athlete Of Year

Easily Outdistances Misses Wright, Hard

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wilma Rudolph, the tall, willowy girl, who doesn't believe in hurrying unless she's wearing track shoes, easily outdistanced all opposition again in winning The Associated Press' award as the female athlete of the year for 1961.

It was the second straight year Miss Rudolph finished on top in the annual Associated Press year-end poll. In the 1961 voting by 250 sports writers and broadcasters, Wilma was named first on 178 ballots. Mickey Wright, the queen of women's professional golf, was second and Darlene Hard, the U.S. tennis titleholder, was third.

Miss Rudolph collected 592 points on a basis of three points for a first-place vote, two for second and one for third. Miss Wright had 270 points, Miss Hard 175 and bowling star Marion Ladewig, 148.

Miss Rudolph, who won three Olympic gold medals in 1960, set a world record for the 100-meter dash last July 19 when she was clocked in 11.2 seconds in Stuttgart, Germany. This was only one of her fine performances during the European tour by an American track and field team.

Wilma tied her own indoor record of 6.9 seconds for the 60-yard dash in the Millrose meet Feb. 3 and two weeks later shattered the mark with a :06.8 clocking.

In recognition of her feats, Wilma will receive the Frederic C. Miller memorial trophy, given by the Fraternal Order of the Eagles at a dinner in Milwaukee, Jan. 4.

Miss Wright, the 26-year-old one-time psychology major from San Diego, Calif., finished in the money in all 24 golf tournaments in which she competed. She won 10 of them and finished with earnings of $22,236.21. Included among her victories were the National Women's Open, the Women's PGA and the Titleholders championship.

Miss Hard, from Montebello, Calif., shook off an attack of hepatitis and bounced back after a two-month layoff to win the National Singles crown at Forest Hills, N.Y. Behind her strong serve-and-volley game, she crushed Britain's Ann Haydon 6-3, 6-4 in the 47-minute final match.

Hank Foldberg Accepts Terms

Texans Rehire Two Holdover Coaches

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — (UPI) — Hank Foldberg formally agreed to terms Monday as athletic director and head football coach at Texas A&M College and completed his staff by hiring holdover coaches Elmer Smith and Bobby Drake Keith.

The 38-year-old Foldberg, announced Saturday as the successor to ousted Jim Myers, met briefly with his future Aggie gridders for about five minutes and asked them to give 100 percent effort next season "and then give a second effort."

The new coach, who can't formally report here until after he directs his Wichita University team against Villanova in the Sun Bowl Dec. 30, is bringing his four-man Wichita staff here with him, but wanted the holdover coaches to start recruiting.

Smith, who was an aide here under Paul (Bear) Bryant before the latter moved on to Alabama, and Keith, who began his coaching under Myers, left the campus Monday on a recruiting tour.

Foldberg, who coached Wichita to two 8-2 seasons in his only times out as a head coach, said he planned to return here Jan. 3.

Ohio State Cops Sixth In Row

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Top-ranked Ohio State, calm despite St. Louis University's pesky defenses, rolled to its sixth consecutive victory of the basketball season Monday night by beating the Billikens 61-48.

Jerry Lucas with 20 points and John Havlicek with 17 simply had too much of everything for the Bills, who now have a 3-3 record.

Chisox Get Phillips, Sadowski From Phils

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox Monday announced acquisition of southpaw hurler Taylor Phillips and infielder Bob Sadowski from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Phillips, who played with the Chicago Cubs and Milwaukee Braves, and Sadowski came to the Sox as part of the trade which sent veteran infielder Andy Carey to the Phils Friday. Both will be assigned to Indianapolis, but will accompany the Sox to spring training.

The Phillies also obtained right handed pitcher Frank Barnes from Indianapolis and will assign him to Buffalo.

McCann, normally a fast man with the quip himself, was still boiling 24 hours after the unsuccessful chicken invasion.

Dick McCann Fumes

"It wasn't funny and it could have been disastrous," he fumed. "It could have delayed the start of the second half for an hour or more and we even could have wound up forfeiting the game if the referee wanted to get tough. Did you ever see how much trouble they have catching a small dog who runs across a field, how do you think they would have done trying to run down 76 scared birds?"

Blue Devils Hand W.V.U. First Defeat

Mullins, Heyman Pace Winners Who Use No Substitutes

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Jeff Mullins and Art Heyman combined for 45 points to lead Duke's "Iron-Five" to a 69-65 win over previously undefeated West Virginia here Monday night.

Mullins picked up 25 points and Heyman 20 as the Blue Devils snapped a six game West Virginia winning streak.

Duke's starting five of Heyman, Mullins, Buzzy Harrison, Buzz Mewhort and Bill Ulrich played the entire game.

The smaller Blue Devils outrebounded West Virginia 60-42 with Mullins collecting 17, Mewhort 16 and Heyman 9. Lowry had 19 for the Mountaineers.

The play of the 6-foot-4 Mewhort was the key to the Duke offense, however, as the senior center did a good job of opening up the lane, enabling Mullins to score several easy goals on drive-in layups.

Jimmy McCormick hit for 23 points to lead West Virginia with Rod Thorn contributing 19 points and Tom Lowry 8 markers.

Mullins Hot Early

Duke, playing a slow deliberate brand of ball, took control of the game at the start and rolled out to an early 10-5 lead with Heyman and Mullins picking up eight of those ten points.

West Virginia came charging back to take the lead at 25-24 on a jump shot by Dick Dubois and again, and for the last time several seconds later, on a layup by McCormick at 27-26. But that was the last time the Mountaineers were in front.

Duke came back strong at the start of the second half and extended the lead to eight points at 45-37 and to eight again at 47-39.

The Mountaineers behind the dead-eye shooting of McCormick who picked up 14 of his points after intermission, came back to tie the game at 48-all.

Press Fails

Duke came alive on a goal by Heyman and a three - point play by Mullins to take a 52-49 edge.

The lead was extended to eight points again late in the game when West Virginia threw the "panic press" at the Blue Devils. WVU cut the margain to two at 63-61 on a layup by Lowry with a little over two minutes remaining in the game.

Packers, Oilers Made Favorites In Title Games

NEW YORK (UPI) — Broadway oddsmakers Monday night installed the Green Bay Packers as three-point favorites over the New York Giants in their National Football League championship game Dec. 31.

The same "wizards of odds" listed the Houston Oilers as 3½-point favorites over the San Diego Chargers for the American Football league championship tilt at San Diego next Sunday.

Blanda, Cannon Capture Offensive Marks in AFL

Cappelletti Sets Scoring Record With 147 Points

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Houston's George Blanda and Billy Cannon, Denver's Lionel Taylor and Boston's Gino Cappelletti won the American Football League's major individual statistical championships and each set a league record en route to the titles.

Blanda, who won the passing title hands down with 53½ efficiency points to 41½ for Oakland's Tom Flores, set new AFL standards of 3,340 yards gained, 36 touchdown passes and 9.23 yards gained per attempt.

Cannon, who came on strong in his last two games to win the rushing crown going away, piled up 948 yards, while defending champ Abner Haynes of Dallas, crippled for several games, finished third with 841 yards. Second place went to New York fullback Billy Mathis, whose 202 rushes also was a new AFL mark. Mathis gained 846 yards.

Taylor, who already held the all-pro record of 92 pass receptions for his inaugural season, boosted that mark to 100.

Cappelletti bested the league scoring record of 123 points set by Gene Mingo of Denver as he combined eight touchdowns, 48 conversions and 17 field goals for 147 points.

Billy Atkins of Buffalo led the circuit in two divisions with 10 interceptions and a 45-yard punting average, the latter being a record. Houston's Charles Hennigan boosted the pass receiving yardage record to 1,746 yards while teammate Bill Groman, who had held the record, posted new marks of 17 touchdown passes and 23.5-yard average gain per pass and also a league record of 18 touchdowns in all.

Dick Christy of New York won the punt return crown with a 21.3-yard average, also a record.

Bearcats' 27-Game Win Streak Ends

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Lanny Van Eman hit a 15-foot jump shot with three seconds left to give the Wichita Shockers a 52-51 basketball victory over Cincinnati Monday night, breaking the Bearcats' 27-game winning streak, longest in current collegiate circles.

Van Eman led the Shockers with 19 points, tying Paul Hogue of Cincinnati for game honors.

Van Eman hit seven field goals in the last eight minutes.

Cincinnati held its biggest lead in the second half, 41-36, with 7:08 to play. Substitute Bill Durham hit a keyhole shot with 13 seconds left to leave Wichita trailing 51-50.

Cincinnati's Larry Singleton fouled on the Bearcats' next possession. Van Eman took the ball out of bounds, passed in to Gene Wiley. He passed back to Van Eman who calmly pitched the ball through the hoop for the victory.

Market Falters After It Scores Early Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were unable to hold their early gains and gradually turned lower in the late trading Monday.

The moderate decline was a bitter pill for many of the analysts who had thought that the bright over-the-weekend business news would be enough to touch off the waylaid year-end rally.

Volume swelled slightly to 3,810,000 shares from 3,710,000 on Friday and the tapes ran late in the final minutes on the sell-off. Of the 1,307 issues traded, only 416 advanced, 19 to new 1961 highs, while 657 declined, 15 to new lows.

Standard & Poor's comprehensive 500 stock index dipped 0.25 indicating an aggregate paper loss of around $1.75.

Dow-Jones industrials showed a loss of 1.69 despite a gain of 3 ¼ in Alcoa whose president is slated to address the New York Social Security Analysts.

Owens-Illinois and Johns-Manville were also up more than a point, the latter despite a Census Bureau report that housing starts fell 6 per cent last month.

Outweighing these gains in the blue chip average, however, were American Telephone, Chrysler, Du Pont, Goodyear and Union Carbide with declines of at least a point and General Electric down 2 ¼ after two more big utilities filed suit to collect triple damages arising out of price rigging convictions.

Market Falters After It Scores Early Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were unable to hold their early gains and gradually turned lower in the late trading Monday.

The moderate decline was a bitter pill for many of the analysts who had thought that the bright over-the-weekend business news would be enough to touch off the waylaid year-end rally.

Volume swelled slightly to 3,810,000 shares from 3,710,000 on Friday and the tapes ran late in the final minutes on the sell-off. Of the 1,307 issues traded, only 416 advanced, 19 to new 1961 highs, while 657 declined, 15 to new lows.

Standard & Poor's comprehensive 500 stock index dipped 0.25 indicating an aggregate paper loss of around $1.75.

Dow-Jones industrials showed a loss of 1.69 despite a gain of 3 ¼ in Alcoa whose president is slated to address the New York Social Security Analysts.

Owens-Illinois and Johns-Manville were also up more than a point, the latter despite a Census Bureau report that housing starts fell 6 per cent last month.

Outweighing these gains in the blue chip average, however, were American Telephone, Chrysler, Du Pont, Goodyear and Union Carbide with declines of at least a point and General Electric down 2 ¼ after two more big utilities filed suit to collect triple damages arising out of price rigging convictions.

Resources Unit Will Press For Reorganization

Draft Of Bill Is Submitted

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Board of Natural Resources decided Monday to renew efforts to reorganize itself at the 1962 session of the General Assembly.

Lester N. Towner, chairman of the board's legislative committee, submitted a draft of a bill to revise the law setting up the Natural Resources Board at the meeting here.

The bill calls for the chairman of the board to be appointed annually by the governor. The present law designates the director of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries as chairman of the board.

Defines Duties

The proposal also defines the duties of the chairman and the board and details the membership of the board. It proposes no changes in the present board makeup of six ex-officio and appointive members.

The bill is similar to one which passed both houses of the legislature at the last session only to be vetoed by Gov. Tawes. The governor said the provisions of the bill dealing with the terms of appointive members made it impossible to comply with.

The natural resources board devoted considerable time Monday to discussing whether it should be enlarged to include two additional ex-officio members—the dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Maryland and the chief of the Bureau of Environmental Hygiene of the State Department of Health.

Will Explore

The present-ex-officio members are the directors of the Departments of Game and Inland Fish, Forest and Parks, Tidewater Fisheries and Geology, Mines and Water Resources and the directors of the Natural Resources Institute of the University of Maryland and the Water Pollution Control Commission.

In another matter, the board voted to explore the alternative proposals offered by the Army Corps of Engineers for development of the Potomac River Basin at its February meeting.

The board deferred until its January meeting discussion of the excavations at the hydroelectric plant at the Conowingo Dam and a permit for excavation of sand and gravel in the Potomac River.

Leaks Wasting 505,000 Gallons Of Water Found

Leaks which were wasting more than half a million gallons of water each day have been located and are being repaired, according to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light.

Five leaks totaling 120,000 gallons a day were discovered last week in the water waste survey being conducted for the city by the Pitometer Company.

This brings the total water saving to 505,000 gallons daily, Mr. Light said.

He said a report by John C. dePenning, Pitometer engineer, indicates that about 40,000 gallons of water a day were found pouring from an abandoned two-inch service line at 512 North Mechanic Street last Tuesday.

Four other leaks in abandoned service lines on Memorial Avenue near Kent Avenue were found last week and were estimated to be wasting some 80,000 gallons daily.

Reported yesterday was the repair of a leak on Race Street, which was wasting some 20,000 gallons daily.

Mr. Light said the leaks are being fixed as quickly as possible. He said part of the repairs are being made by a special four-man crew specifically assigned to follow up the Pitometer survey.

Regular Water Department crews are assigned to the line repairs as time permits.

Cresaptown Crash Injures LaVale Woman

A 29-year-old LaVale woman was hospitalized yesterday afternoon with injuries sustained when the car she was driving wrecked on U. S. Route 220 near State Route 53 in Cresaptown. Her son, a passenger was uninjured, police said.

Mrs. Margel G. Kesner of 87 LaVale Boulevard, was reported in "fair" condition last night at Memorial Hospital. She sustained head injuries and abrasions in the accident at 2:30 p.m.

Trooper J. H. Sweitzer of the State Police said the mother and her son were traveling south on Route 220 in the foreign-built auto which ran off the east side of the highway about two tenths of a mile south of Route 53.

The small car turned sideways and the left front struck a pole flipping the vehicle around. It continued for some distance and hit a dwelling nearby.

The woman was taken to the local hospital in the ambulance of the Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Company.

Court To Hear Zoning Appeal

A case will be heard in Allegany County Circuit Court today in connection with the refusal of the city engineer and Board of Zoning Appeals of Cumberland to grant a permit to a local man who wants to operate a printing company on Williams Street.

Charles W. Turner, 22 Fifth Street, petitioned the court some time ago to reverse the decisions of the city engineer and Board.

He wants to operate the business in Residential Zone B section of Cumberland. Mr. Turner said the property at 257 Williams Street has been used for business purposes for many years.

Today's hearing is scheduled to get underway at 9:15 a.m.

More Than A One-Man Job

Charles E. Griffith, a postal clerk at the Cumberland main post office, (if you want to play find the man) is practically covered by this huge pile of Christmas mail, part of that dispatched here yesterday. As soon as the photo was taken, Mr. Griffith began the task of sorting the Yuletide gift packages. He had considerable help, and extra clerks were still busy late last night. Postal officials are still urging "mail early" but intend to clear all mail in time for Christmas delivery if humanly possible. Mail cancellations recorded yesterday were 180,500, 21,890 above the figure for the corresponding date last year.

Court Drops Assault Count Against Pope

Participants Agree To Compromise Case

A charge of assault against Charles W. Pope of 309 Central Avenue, was dismissed yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court.

Pope was arrested as a result of a cutting incident December 9 in a local tavern and the charge against him was dismissed by Magistrate Paul W. Barnett at the request of the state's attorney's office.

City Police charged Pope with assaulting Joseph W. Mann, 38, of 435 Pine Avenue, after Pope sustained a cut across his back which required 20 stitches.

A compromise case of assault, a seldom-used law, agreed upon by Mann and Pope. Under the terms of the agreement, Pope agreed to pay Mann's hospital expenses and for damages to his clothing.

The court noted Pope had never been in trouble before and Mann did not wish to press charges.

John J. Mathias, local attorney, represented Mann at the hearing, and Pope was represented by Attorney Gorman E. Getty.

Some Delays Expected On Christmas Calling

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company expects Christmas to be its most hectic day of the year and if you plan to make a long distance call there is a good possibility you'll have some waiting to do.

The peak period is expected to be between 7 o'clock Christmas eve and about 10 o'clock on Christmas night and some delays are expected to be encountered by those placing calls during this period.

It is true that millions of Americans who will call long distance this Christmas will be substantially lower in number than those long distance calls which go through promptly on any regular business day.

The phone company explains the bulk of everyday long distance calling is of a business nature, mostly between large metropolitan centers and tnere are enough circuits to handles there.

Christmas calls, however, are almost exclusively inspired by sentiment and a very large number of them are to small towns or homes in suburban areas. The lines that connect big cities with small towns or link rural communities are far less numerous, and heavy long distance calling to such areas may require some juggling of circuits — and some waiting.

Mrs. Lucille Weber, long distance chief operator in the Cumberland office, said a lot of prior planning goes into the handling of the Christmas load. She said a large operating force will be on duty to handle the many thousands of calls which will be

Yule Cheer Fund Needs $1,500 Yet

The Salvation Army's Christmas cheer fund still needs about $1,500 to reach its goal of $5,000 to make the holiday a happy occasion for the less fortunate of the area, according to Captain Fred Overton, commanding officer.

Service clubs, which started manning the kettle in front of McCrory's on Baltimore Street last Thursday, have been instrumental in getting the collections to the level of $3,500 as of yesterday morning.

The Cumberland Rotary Club last Saturday collected $538.54, which is believed a one-day record for the kettle on Baltimore Street. Bedford Road Optimists brought in $263.06 last Thursday and the Fraternal Order of Police collected $246.34 Friday. The Cumberland Optimists were on the job yesterday.

Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, will be on duty at the kettle today, the Kiwanis Club tomorrow, Jaycees on Thursday and the Cumberland Lions on Friday. On Saturday, Lewis J. Ort, a life member of the Salvation Army, and Captain Overton will be on duty for the finale. The Ali Ghan Shrine will help enliven things at 2 p.m. Saturday before going to the County and Infirmary for an entertainment.

The two service clubs in Lonaconing almost ended in a dead heat last Saturday, the Rotarians collected $127.86 and the Lions $126.74.

A toy shop with about $1,000 worth of new toys has been opened at 118 North Mechanic Street. Toys will be given away Friday to those who have applied and then other needs will be filled, according to Envoy Paul Messenger.

Christmas orders for food will be mailed out by the Salvation Army Wednesday.

VEPCO Dam To Be Heart Of Big System

Company Forecasts Record Transmission

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Electric and Power Co. (VEPCO) announced Monday it will build what it said was the first complete half-million volt transmission system in the free world.

A. H. McDowell, president of the electric firm, said the facility would bring more than one million kilowatts into northern and central Virginia from the mine-mouth power station VEPCO is building near Petersburg, W. Va.

Engineering and surveying will begin at once for the project, part of which will be completed in 1964, McDowell said. The first portion of the high-voltage system will extend from the power station to the Washington area and to the Staunton - Waynesboro area in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

The second generating unit at the power station will be placed in operation early in 1966 to complete a loop that will be extended into the Richmond area.

McDowell said the large generating units and extra high voltage transmission of power will "offset substantially the steadily rising cost of generating power."

VEPCO said the Pennsylvania Electric Co. now operates at 500,000 volts a short line originally constructed for experimental purposes. But VEPCO said its 350-mile system would be the first complete transmission system in the free world to operate at 500,000 volts.

The electric company said the Russians had boasted of operating a half-million volt transmission line.

Bedford Store Safe Cracking Being Probed

About $300 in cash and a number of checks were reported taken from the safe of the Better Tire Store in Bedford, Pa. over the weekend.

Intruders failed to crack the safe of the Acme Market, located on the same street as the tire store.

Authorities said last night no suspects had been arrested.

The burglaries were discovered Monday morning when employes of the stores reported for work.

A cutting torch was used to get to the cash and checks in the safe of the tire store, said police.

Evidence Heard In Dispute Over Bakeries

Action Involves Caporale Name

Testimony was completed about noon yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court in a case involving the use of a family name for local business purposes.

Felix Caporale, operator of Caporale's Sanitary Bread, and his mother, Mary Caporale, filed the equity suit charging unfair competition against the Dave Caporale Bakery, Inc. with the defendant in the case being David Caporale, brother of Felix and son of Mary.

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey, who presided at the trial, will file an opinion and decree in the case, a court attache said

Howard Naughton represented Felix and Mary Caporale, while Peter J. Carpenti and John C. Sullivan were attorneys for the defendant.

Testimony in the case revealed that Felix and Dave Caporale worked for their father, Augusto Caporale, until his death five years ago, at which time Felix took over the business to operate for Augusto Caporale's widow, Mary.

Testimony also revealed that Dave and Felix entered in business together in 1956 and worked together until Dave withdrew and opened his own business in Uniontown, Pa. Dave later in January of this year established another business at 135 North Mechanic Street.

A number of bread and roll wrappers were entered as evidence. Felix's wrappers featured blue lettering, while Dave's were red in color. The brothers' trucks were also pointed out to the court. Here again, Felix's is blue with white lettering, while Dave's is white with red lettering.

While on the witness stand, Felix Caporale testified that his brother's competition has cost him approximately a $7,000 loss this year and caused confusion in his mail and other business matters.

Local Man Found Shot To Death

A 54-year-old local man was found shot to death last night in the kitchen of his apartment, 412 South Cedar Street.

The victim was identified George James Paulus, according to city police, who said the man was shot through the heart.

The deputy county medical examiner's office indicated last night that the shot was self-inflicted.

A neighbor who lives upstairs in the apartment house told police she heard a shot about 9:05 p. m. and when she went to the Paulus apartment to investigate found the man's wife bent over his body in the kitchen.

She called another neighbor and in turn they called local police. Detective Royce Clayton said the man's wife reported that her husband had obtained an antlerless deer hunting permit and had planned going doe hunting.

He had cleaned the .257 single barrel rifle for the hunting trip, according to Detective Clayton, who said the stock of the rifle had been placed on the kitchen floor and the shot was fired.

The body is at the Scarpelli Funeral Home.

Born in Kentucky November 25, 1907, Mr. Paulus was a son of the late George Paulus and Mrs. Lucy (Newhouse) Paulus, who resides in Cumberland.

Other survivors are his widow, Mrs. Clara (McFarlane) Paulus; three sons, George William Paul-

The small car turned sideways and the left front struck a pole flipping the vehicle around. It continued for some distance and hit a dwelling nearby.

Court Drops Assault Count Against Pope

Participants Agree To Compromise Case

A charge of assault against Charles W. Pope of 309 Central Avenue, was dismissed yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court.

Pope was arrested as a result of a cutting incident December 9 in a local tavern and the charge against him was dismissed by Magistrate Paul W. Barnett at the request of the state's attorney's office.

City Police charged Pope with assaulting Joseph W. Mann, 38, of 435 Pine Avenue, after Pope sustained a cut across his back which required 20 stitches.

A compromise case of assault, a seldom-used law, agreed upon by Mann and Pope. Under the terms of the agreement, Pope agreed to pay Mann's hospital expenses and for damages to his clothing.

The court noted Pope had never been in trouble before and Mann did not wish to press charges.

John J. Mathias, local attorney, represented Mann at the hearing, and Pope was represented by Attorney Gorman E. Getty.

Some Delays Expected On Christmas Calling

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company expects Christmas to be its most hectic day of the year and if you plan to make a long distance call there is a good possibility you'll have some waiting to do.

The peak period is expected to be between 7 o'clock Christmas eve and about 10 o'clock on Christmas night and some delays are expected to be encountered by those placing calls during this period.

It is true that millions of Americans who will call long distance this Christmas will be substantially lower in number than those long distance calls which go through promptly on any regular business day.

The phone company explains the bulk of everyday long distance calling is of a business nature, mostly between large metropolitan centers and tnere are enough circuits to handles there.

Christmas calls, however, are almost exclusively inspired by sentiment and a very large number of them are to small towns or homes in suburban areas. The lines that connect big cities with small towns or link rural communities are far less numerous, and heavy long distance calling to such areas may require some juggling of circuits — and some waiting.

Mrs. Lucille Weber, long distance chief operator in the Cumberland office, said a lot of prior planning goes into the handling of the Christmas load. She said a large operating force will be on duty to handle the many thousands of calls which will be

Yule Cheer Fund Needs $1,500 Yet

The Salvation Army's Christmas cheer fund still needs about $1,500 to reach its goal of $5,000 to make the holiday a happy occasion for the less fortunate of the area, according to Captain Fred Overton, commanding officer.

Service clubs, which started manning the kettle in front of McCrory's on Baltimore Street last Thursday, have been instrumental in getting the collections to the level of $3,500 as of yesterday morning.

The Cumberland Rotary Club last Saturday collected $538.54, which is believed a one-day record for the kettle on Baltimore Street. Bedford Road Optimists brought in $263.06 last Thursday and the Fraternal Order of Police collected $246.34 Friday. The Cumberland Optimists were on the job yesterday.

Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, will be on duty at the kettle today, the Kiwanis Club tomorrow, Jaycees on Thursday and the Cumberland Lions on Friday. On Saturday, Lewis J. Ort, a life member of the Salvation Army, and Captain Overton will be on duty for the finale. The Ali Ghan Shrine will help enliven things at 2 p.m. Saturday before going to the County and Infirmary for an entertainment.

The two service clubs in Lonaconing almost ended in a dead heat last Saturday, the Rotarians collected $127.86 and the Lions $126.74.

A toy shop with about $1,000 worth of new toys has been opened at 118 North Mechanic Street. Toys will be given away Friday to those who have applied and then other needs will be filled, according to Envoy Paul Messenger.

Christmas orders for food will be mailed out by the Salvation Army Wednesday.

VEPCO Dam To Be Heart Of Big System

Company Forecasts Record Transmission

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Electric and Power Co. (VEPCO) announced Monday it will build what it said was the first complete half-million volt transmission system in the free world.

A. H. McDowell, president of the electric firm, said the facility would bring more than one million kilowatts into northern and central Virginia from the mine-mouth power station VEPCO is building near Petersburg, W. Va.

Engineering and surveying will begin at once for the project, part of which will be completed in 1964, McDowell said. The first portion of the high-voltage system will extend from the power station to the Washington area and to the Staunton - Waynesboro area in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

The second generating unit at the power station will be placed in operation early in 1966 to complete a loop that will be extended into the Richmond area.

McDowell said the large generating units and extra high voltage transmission of power will "offset substantially the steadily rising cost of generating power."

VEPCO said the Pennsylvania Electric Co. now operates at 500,000 volts a short line originally constructed for experimental purposes. But VEPCO said its 350-mile system would be the first complete transmission system in the free world to operate at 500,000 volts.

The electric company said the Russians had boasted of operating a half-million volt transmission line.

Evidence Heard In Dispute Over Bakeries

Action Involves Caporale Name

Testimony was completed about noon yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court in a case involving the use of a family name for local business purposes.

Felix Caporale, operator of Caporale's Sanitary Bread, and his mother, Mary Caporale, filed the equity suit charging unfair competition against the Dave Caporale Bakery, Inc. with the defendant in the case being David Caporale, brother of Felix and son of Mary.

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey, who presided at the trial, will file an opinion and decree in the case, a court attache said

Howard Naughton represented Felix and Mary Caporale, while Peter J. Carpenti and John C. Sullivan were attorneys for the defendant.

Testimony in the case revealed that Felix and Dave Caporale worked for their father, Augusto Caporale, until his death five years ago, at which time Felix took over the business to operate for Augusto Caporale's widow, Mary.

Testimony also revealed that Dave and Felix entered in business together in 1956 and worked together until Dave withdrew and opened his own business in Uniontown, Pa. Dave later in January of this year established another business at 135 North Mechanic Street.

A number of bread and roll wrappers were entered as evidence. Felix's wrappers featured blue lettering, while Dave's were red in color. The brothers' trucks were also pointed out to the court. Here again, Felix's is blue with white lettering, while Dave's is white with red lettering.

While on the witness stand, Felix Caporale testified that his brother's competition has cost him approximately a $7,000 loss this year and caused confusion in his mail and other business matters.

Local Man Found Shot To Death

A 54-year-old local man was found shot to death last night in the kitchen of his apartment, 412 South Cedar Street.

The victim was identified by George James Paulus, according to city police, who said the man was shot through the heart.

The deputy county medical examiner's office indicated last night that the shot was self-inflicted.

A neighbor who lives upstairs in the apartment house told police she heard a shot about 9:05 p. m. and when she went to the Paulus apartment to investigate found the man's wife bent over his body in the kitchen.

She called another neighbor and in turn they called local police. Detective Royce Clayton said the man's wife reported that her husband had obtained an antlerless deer hunting permit and had planned going doe hunting.

He had cleaned the .257 single barrel rifle for the hunting trip, according to Detective Clayton, who said the stock of the rifle had been placed on the kitchen floor and the shot was fired.

The body is at the Scarpelli Funeral Home.

Born in Kentucky November 25, 1907, Mr. Paulus was a son of the late George Paulus and Mrs. Lucy (Newhouse) Paulus, who resides in Cumberland.

Other survivors are his widow, Mrs. Clara (McFarlane) Paulus; three sons, George William Paul-
